SEEK SHIFT IN TAX SET-UP TO PAY FOR ARMS

Congressional Leaders Call on Government to Tighten Belt to Provide Funds.

REORGANIZATION URGED

President's Request for Right to Call National Guard Still Draws Criticism.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today began work on a program to reduce general government expenditures by 10 per cent and apply the saving to the national defense fund.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—New congressional demands that the government tighten its belt and avoid greater deficits gave rise today to proposals for boosting special defense taxes beyond $656,000,000 a year.

The house ways and means committee set that figure before President Roosevelt's second message last week asking further expansion of the preparedness program.

Senator George (D-Ga) told reporters that the country would be in "a serious condition" unless $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 annually is provided in the pending tax legislation.

Senator Brown (D-Mich) urged in a speech last night:

"Let us meet the challenge (of defense) by paying the bill."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) proposed "complete reorganization of the government's finances" and called the defense tax bill "a mustard plaster on a cancer."

Senator Capper (R-Kans) expressed the opinion in a radio talk that the proposed 10 per cent increase in income taxes would not be sufficient. He predicted that eventually congress would have to lower the income tax exemptions.

While the ways and means committee pushed hearings on the tax measure in the hope of completing action this week, there were these other developments in the rearmament campaign:

1. The national executive board of the CIO was called into session with John L. Lewis today to determine its policy toward the defense program. Aides of Lewis said that the group probably would declare its intention to cooperate

HITS '$50 AT 60'

Good Roads Head Scores New Bigelow Pension Plan.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The revived Bigelow "$50 at 60" old age pension plan "would bankrupt the state and everything in it," Roland C. Caley, executive director of the Ohio Good Roads Federation, declared today in urging members to refrain from signing petitions to place the once-defeated proposal on the November ballot.

"The adoption of any such radical plan as this would positively bring about the confiscation of the road and street revenues now made available for highway betterment," said Caley.

MARYSVILLE—(U.P.)—A walkout of three American Federation of Labor unions today threw 350 men out of work at Fisher Brass, Inc., after failure to renew union contracts.

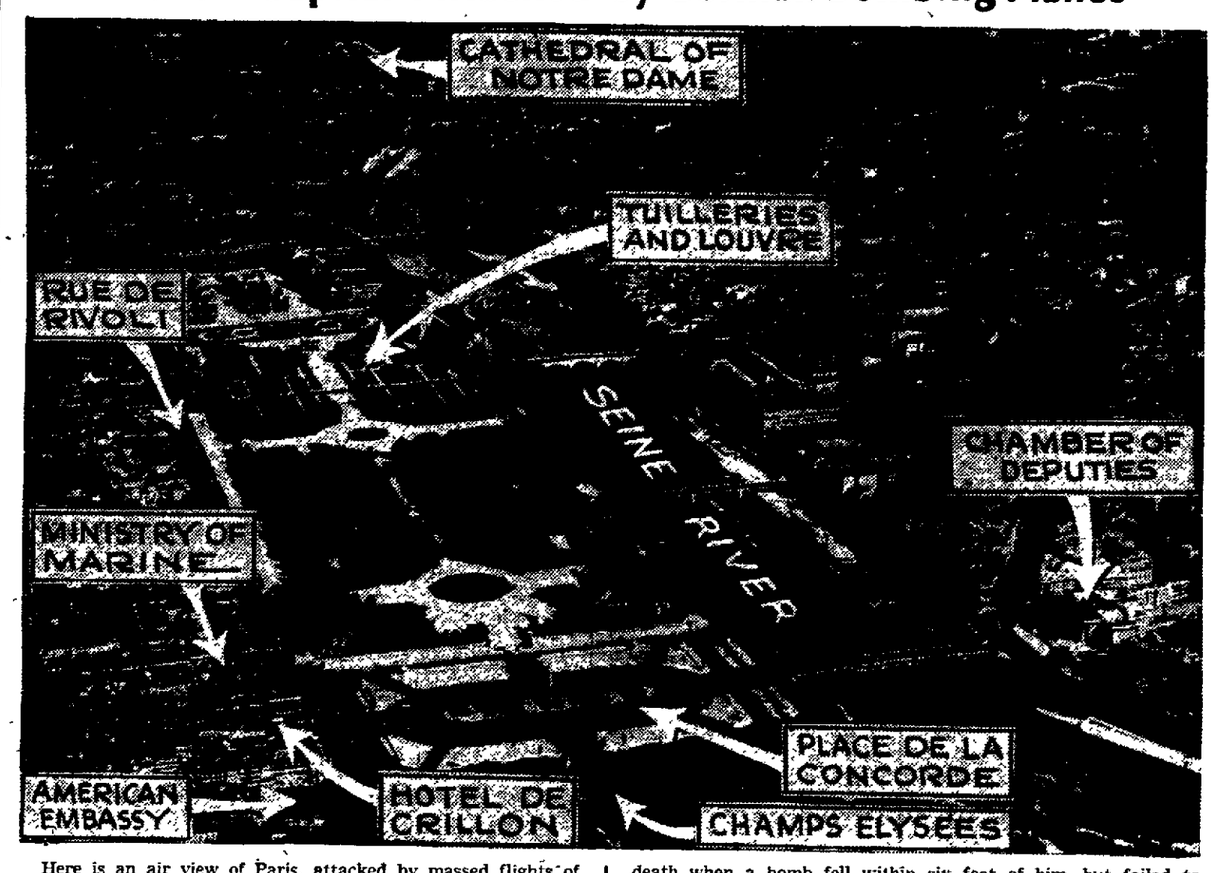
French Capital Attacked by German Bombing Planes



Here is an air view of Paris, attacked by massed flights of German bombing planes today. Fires were reported raging in the outskirts of the city, and U. S. CCC ENROLLEES SET UP CAMP

158 Youths Arrive, Put Final Touches on Barracks Erected Southeast of City.

Nearly 200 colored youths from a South Bend, Ind., CCC camp had moved into the new Richland county camp southeast of Mansfield today, but 36 of them were immediately transferred to other camps.

The 158 enrollees left at the camp were busy today putting the finishing touches on camp buildings and laying sewer lines on the camp grounds.

The camp is in charge of Lieut. Clay who came to Mansfield with the youths from South Bend, Ind. His home is in Cadiz, O.

While little information about plans for the camp was available today, it was believed the enrollment will be held down until all the buildings are ready for occupancy and more housing space is available. The camp was built to house at least 200 boys.

When construction work is completed, the enrollees will begin soil erosion work in Richland, Ashland and Knox counties under the supervision of S. E. Dolle, camp project supervisor.

Operating under the direction of the U. S. department of agriculture, the camp was set up in the county to further the erosion prevention program of the federal government.

Angry Protests Mark Browder's Broadcast

Listeners Criticize Radio Systems for Carrying Communist Talk; One Urges Change in Laws.

NEW YORK—A flood of angry complaints today followed the broadcast of Earl R. Browder's speech accepting the Communist party nomination for the presidency.

The National and Mutual broadcasting companies carried the acceptance speeches of Browder and his running mate, James W Ford, negro, vice presidential candidate, from the Communist convention at Madison Square Garden. The Columbia broadcasting company presented a shorter speech by Browder later.

All three networks said the broadcasts were carried in accordance with federal law requiring equal treatment of recognized political parties.

A great majority of the 400 individual network stations refused to carry the Browder and Ford speeches, exercising discretion allowed them by law.

NBC reported that its office in Washington received almost 100 complaints because of the Browder broadcast. Columbia and Mutual reported similar telephone complaints.

Columbia proposed that the present law be modified to exclude political parties subservient to foreign governments.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Radio Station WCKY reported today it received only four telephone calls last night to protest its refusal to carry the speech of Earl Browder, Communist presidential candidate, who talked over a national hookup to which WCKY normally belongs.

Prior to the broadcast, the station had been threatened anonymously by a "flood" of calls if it did not carry the program.

Members of Local 16, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO), the employers agreed yesterday at a mass meeting to accept a company proposal for 2½ to 4-cents-an-hour salary increases, pending further negotiations.

Use Capabilities to Succeed, Grads Told at Baccalaureate

"Success in living is not determined by our natural capabilities but rather by what you have been able to do with these capabilities," Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist church, told the 302 members of the June graduating class of Senior high school at baccalaureate services in the First Lutheran church last night.

A crowd of 1,700, largest ever to attend a baccalaureate service at the church, overflowed into the Sunday school rooms. About 200 stood during the exercises, and others were turned away due to lack of seating facilities.

Three suggestions as purposes of living were outlined by Rev. Braker in his sermon on "The Lift of the Far View." They were: 1. Make the most of yourselves; 2. Cooperate with others; 3. Love yourselves in a cause that is greater than our own comforts and lives.

"We must make the most of ourselves, and this is something more than deciding upon one's life work," Rev. Braker said in his first suggestion.

"We must learn what to do when we haven't anything to do. Furthermore, success in living is not determined by our natural capa-

45 Reported Killed, Buildings Wrecked By Raiding Planes

NAZIS CLAIM 330,000 ARE HELD PRISONER

Say Huge Number of Troops Captured in 'Destructive' Battle of Flanders.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Attacking German forces now are only three miles from Dunkerque Beach, latest members of the rescued British expeditionary force disclosed on their arrival in London today. "The French are fighting like mad and putting up a magnificent battle," the soldiers said.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The capture of 330,000 British and French prisoners "in the course of the big destructive battle of Artois and Flanders" was reported today by the German high command. Its communique said this count was "preliminary."

Constantly increasing pressure on Dunkerque, the Allies' exit from the Flanders trap, was reported by the high command but it acknowledged that Nazi forces were being slowed down by Allied rearguard resistance.

Its communique indicated that northern France still was the main battlefield although Nazi armies prepared for a new smash in the west which informed quarters said might be launched anywhere between Norway and the Swiss border.

"No rest for the enemy," was the German watchword.

The high command admitted that the Allied rearguard still held Dunkerque and that the German progress on the English channel port from the west, south and east was slow because of "terrain which has been inundated and crisscrossed by numerous ditches."

Nevertheless, it said, Nazi forces entered Bergues, about five miles south of Dunkerque.

SUN TO STAY

It will be fair and slightly warmer tonight and Tuesday with more showers due by Tuesday night, the forecast said.

Ideal weather had settled over most of the nation today, with only three stations reporting rain. Temperatures reached summer levels in all sections and at Huron, S. D., a torrid 100 was reported.

Casualties were believed to be heavy on both sides as the Norwegians tried to force the Nazis out of railway tunnel entrenchments.

One American Meets Death in Attack From Air, Ambassador Bullitt Narrowly Escapes; Blazes Follow Bomb Hits.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(AP)—Forty-five persons were killed and 149 injured in Paris and its outskirts today in the German air attack on the capital, it was officially announced tonight.

By JOHN LLOYD
(AP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—The Germans bombed the city of Paris today, wrecking many buildings, setting numerous fires, ripping up streets and killing and wounding scores of persons.

Reports still unverified said that 35 were killed, including one American. (The censor deleted 24 words apparently dealing with casualties.)

One of those who narrowly escaped was William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador. A bomb fell six feet from him but failed to explode.

Bullitt, at the time, was about to have lunch in a building which does not form a part of the embassy.

Most of the casualties, it was indicated in first reports, were suffered in the outlying districts and in slum sections of the city.

Several bombs fell on a particularly important building in Paris, but censorship, temporarily at least, banned transmission of its name or location.

Soldiers immediately took over control of the bombed areas.

Several bombs landed near the house of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Down the street from where they live an apartment building caved in.

Next door to that place, the neighbors stared glumly through paneless windows into a hole 40 feet deep, scooped magically and thunderously out of their front yard.

Explosive and incendiary bombs hit a factory near the Seine and started a raging fire. Great billows of smoke rolled out of the building to blot out the sky across the river from one of the city's most fashionable districts. Here at least a dozen bombs fell.

The first official bulletin on the raid, published by the Havas agency, foreign news agency, said "several bombs fell

CANCELLED: Italy Calls Off '42 Expo, Summons Army

(By Associated Press)

ROME—The Italian government today announced the indefinite postponement of the 1942 Rome exposition, which Premier Mussolini once referred to as proof that Italy was not planning to go to war. The reason given for the postponement was that several nations had requested more time to prepare exhibits.

Italy's "behind the scenes" military mobilization proceeded, with the pink cards which call up reservists being delivered at additional homes every mail.

Residents of Turin, Italy's big industrial center close to the French frontier, were urged by the press today to depart for country districts as the nation quietly pressed general mobilization plans in preparation for war.

Throughout Italy the population, convinced that the zero hour is not far distant, anxiously awaited word as to where and when the first blow would be struck in behalf of long-agitated "national aspirations."

"Mobilization is under way," Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, declared emphatically.

Some quarters ventured the opinion that some announcement concerning Premier Mussolini's intentions might follow the scheduled meeting of the Italian cabinet tomorrow, but this possibility was scouted by the newspaper Il Resto Del Carlino, a leading exponent of intervention.

Il Resto forecast, however, that Italy would move soon.

Some observers believed that the arrival of the Italian liner Conte Di Savoia at Genoa yesterday, after omitting the usual Naples stop, had brought the deadline closer.

Arrival of the vessel coincided with the departure from Genoa of the United States lines Manhattan, homeward bound with 2,000 American for foreign refugees. Steamship agents said at least 1,000 persons who had hoped to sail were left behind.

The American liners President Harrison and Excambion are due to sail today or tomorrow but they already are booked to capacity.

Council Expected to Reject Plea for 4 More Firemen

LACK OF FUNDS TO BLOCK NEW LEGISLATION

Bill Providing for Additional Fire Fighters in Council's Hopper for Tomorrow.

Legislation before city council to provide four additional men for the fire department is scheduled to be shelved when council meets in regular session tomorrow night.

Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, said today that no action would be taken on the measure due to lack of funds in the city's operating till.

The bill was drafted at the request of George C. Kyle, council member of the firemen's pension board, to furnish the additional firemen for a three-month period.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, who has sought the additional men annually for the past 10 years said they were needed to "fill in" while firemen are on vacation. He warned officials that unless the men are hired it will mean shelving some of the equipment during the vacation period.

Kyle could not be reached today for comment on the measure which would necessitate an appropriation of $1,760 to pay the four men for the vacation period.

No Word on Transfer.

The firemen's pension board was asked a month ago by the finance committee to transfer the necessary amount from its surplus funds to cover the cost. Miller said today that the committee had not yet received a reply from the board.

An opinion from City Solicitor Marion D. Ward has, however, been received by the board in which he ruled such a transfer would be illegal.

Also up for council's approval will be legislation granting the state a 10-year easement on a land contract at the city airport for construction of a roadside park.

The bill provides for the development for park purposes of a tract 800 feet long and 200 feet deep. The park proposal is included in a $40,000 National Youth Administration airport improvement project.

In addition, council will also name a new member to succeed the late Philip Smith, Democratic councilman at large, who was accidentally killed last month while working in a downtown office building.

Democratic members will caucus tonight to decide on their choice. With Democrats retaining a 5 to 3 majority there is expected to be little discussion over the election on council floor.

Under the fluoroscope, the long-wrapped mummy was revealed as two wooden cross-boards held together by tacks. It had been built by hand.

THREE MONTHS INTENSE WORK, AND O. N. G.'s READY TO FIGHT

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Three months' intensive training would be required to prepare Ohio's 10,200 national guarsmen for active duty in war, Adjt. Gen. Gilson D. Light said today.

After the guardsmen and U. S. army reserve officers had struggled in two days of mimic combat at New Albany, near here, their commander-in-chief recalled that six months were needed to prepare the state's troops for the World war in 1917.

While the guard of 1940 is much improved over its 1917 pre-war predecessor, with stream-lining of organization, "we are still in damn bad shape" for need of tanks, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns and modern planes, General Light said.

Not one of the new Garand semi-automatic rifles has reached the Ohio guard, but it hopes to receive some by September.

The Ohioans are almost 100 per cent equipped in clothing and similar supplies.

They have 562 motor vehicles, 124 more are due in this month and 842 have been promised this fall. By next spring the guard hopes to be fully equipped with 2,000 motor vehicles.

The Ohio national guard, which includes 700 officers, comprises one division—the 38th—which in wartime would become part of the army of the United States.

Under new organization plans, the size of the division would be cut to about 9,000 men and Ohio could be called upon to raise a second division.

BRICKER GIVES SUGGESTION AT DULUTH SESSION

Also Proposes Administrative Appeals Court in Address Before Conference.

(By Associated Press)

DULUTH, Minn.—Creation of an Ohio department of justice and an administrative court of appeals was suggested today by Governor John W. Bricker.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the governor's conference, the Ohio governor said that two such governmental agencies would expedite the administration of justice.

He pointed out that the Ohio attorney general was civil law officer of the state and had no criminal jurisdiction except when called in to conduct a grand jury investigation and supersede the county prosecutor.

"My service in that office for four years and my experience as governor," Bricker said, "convinces me that there should be a department of justice created in our state, headed by the attorney general. It should include a bureau of investigation. The attorney general should be empowered to intervene in criminal cases, especially in those cases where state officials and state appropriations are concerned."

An administrative court of appeals, he asserted, should have state-wide jurisdiction to entertain appeals from state boards, bureaus and department heads.

"This," he added, "would amount to clearing of facts and leaving the supreme court or courts of last resort to consider questions of law alone."

Turning to relations with the federal government, he said he appreciated its "grave responsibilities under the expanded industrial order and the changed social problems."

Nevertheless, he added, "we have also felt the greater taxing power of Washington" and said he believed the governors should "strive to prevent a federal, centralized, powerful government from completely wiping out the sovereignty of the states of the union."

"One way," he said in conclusion, "is to meet local needs in a business-like way."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking For Myself.

Some of the romance went out of the Broadway scene for me when Orson Welles shaved off his beard. It was always such a faintly startling, casually sinister appurtenance, a Machiavellian accessory hung on a baby face. It made Orson a fascinating figure amidst the monotony of beardlessness at the Stork club; now he just looks like sort of a Dead End cherub. . . .

I always wonder what mischievous inventor thought up those elusive seats in the Radio City Music Hall. You think you have one, and it collapses into thin air; rise to let an old gentleman go past you, and it's gone; move around to fix your coat, and it gives you a playful slap. I sat the other night and watched three elderly ladies looking all around in dismay for their seats, which had suddenly vanished. . . .

I think Rudy Vallee is more frank about his tremendous quantity of ego than any celebrity I ever met. . . . I love Victor Moore, but I guess that hardly puts me in a class by myself.

I wish radio announcers would stop interrupting musical programs with news flashes that were in all the papers five hours before. It's depressing enough when the news is fresh—why rub it in? . . .

I am addicted to screwball band leaders, like Raymond Scott and Artie Shaw—the never-a-dull-moment boys. . . . Margie Hart, the stripteaser, is so demure in a night club that you'd never notice her in any place where there were debutantes present. . . . I can't wait to see "Our Town" even if they did change the stage ending.

After I complained about giving the film a happy finale, I saw a letter Thornton Wilder wrote to Sol Lesser, the producer, approving the happy ending—explaining that in the theater the characters are "halfway abstractions in an allegory," in the movie, they're close, concrete.

So, Wilder said, it's not important that Emily, the young heroine, die—"it's even disproportionately cruel that she die. Let her live." Okay, if it's all right with Mr. Wilder, it's all right with me.

The indifference of the elevator operators at 247 Park to the Powers models is wonderful to behold and impossible to explain.

I always feel sorry for the torch-bearing unknowns who wire Stan Shaw at 4 a. m. asking him to play sob songs like "Could I Forget You" and "These Foolish Things Remind Me of You." But that's probably just my mind minting fictional situations.

The requests probably come, not from a heartbroken lover arising from a tear-wet pillow, but a hefty hashslinger in Mac's Roadside Grill on the Sunrise highway. . . .

Morley and Gearhart, who play the twin pianos at the Ruban Bleu, the best-looking keyboard pair I've ever seen—and their Porter medley must make Cole feel very happy.

I wonder what the glamor girls would do if a cameraman dropped in at the Pick-A-Rib some early morning and yelled "Hold It!" just as they were attracting a set of spare-ribs in the native, or pick-em-up-with-your-fingers manner. . . . I don't believe in ghosts or spooks, but I never can remember that I don't when I wake up at 2 a. m. and hear a knocking sound in the dark room. . . .

It's funny how, even in the midst of a world crisis, a girl can get so mad over a broken finger-nail. Helen of Troy while they were launching all those ships on her account, was probably fuming because she hadn't had time to get her hair done. I guess that's why there's never been a woman president of the United States.

I love cops-and-robbers and airplanes-and-Indians movies.

Funny how you get in the gastronomical groove at restaurants around town and always eat the same things at the same places, I always order hamburger at Twenty One, vichyssoise at Colbert's, cheese cake at Lindy's, and chicken with white wine sauce and rice at Theodore's. . . .

I would rather polish all the windows in the Chrysler building than make a ten-minute speech. . . . I wonder what ever became of those wonderful canines known as "pug dogs"? I saw one in a drug store a few weeks ago, and its owner said it was the only one in New York. . . . St. Patrick's looks lovely when they line the front steps with boxes of hydrangeas. . . .

I realize "doubloon" is a Spanish coin, but it always sounds as though it should be something that is worn by Shakespearian actors.

I'm tired of tropical night clubs and dim rooms and weird rum drinks and rhumba bands. How about a night spot done in Eighteenth Century style, with cigaret girls in hoop skirts, and crystal chandeliers, and nothing served but champagne, and nothing played but waltzes? I know, it would probably fold in a week.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Edison, the Man." Screenplay by Talbot Jennings and Bradbury Foote from story by Dore Schary and Hugo Butler. Directed by Clarence Brown. Principals: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Lynne Overman, Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart, Henry Travers, Felix Bressart, Peter Godfrey, Gene Reynolds.

* * * * *

A startlingly familiar old man is honor guest at a banquet celebrating his conquest of darkness: he is Thomas Alva Edison, played by Spencer Tracy. So vivid is the recreation that those who knew Edison in life will be astounded.

From this beginning the film cuts back to a review of the inventive genius's early struggles and achievements, culminating in his triumph with light. "Edison, the Man" is a final answer to any who still insist a biographical film, with a high educational content, cannot be loaded with entertainment.

Fans who demand romance will find it here, for Edison's meeting, wooing and marriage with Mary Stilwell (Johnson) is an integral part of the narrative. Miss Johnson brings to this role such sincerity as to explain why suddenly she has a waiting-list for her services.

Fans who demand suspense will find more than enough, for Edison has an uphill fight against tough obstacles; to win he works tirelessly. There is suspense in his search for the one element that will serve as filament for his lamp; there is terrific suspense in his final challenge—a fight against time for the successful lighting of a section of New York.

Scripters and director (Clarence Brown's work is exceptionally imaginative) have collaborated to inject humor, human incident and richness of detail; the picture is wholly satisfying.

Tracy's Edison, presented with simplicity and strength, is wholly worthy of its original—so convincing as to seem less acting than living.

"LILLIAN RUSSELL." Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Irving Cummings. Principals: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Warren William, Edward Arnold, Leo Carrillo, Helen Westley, Dorothy Peterson, Ernest Truex, Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, Jr., Una O'Connor.

The week's other excursion into biography, toasting the wasp-waisted actress beauty of the 90's, is less successful as a glorification of Lillian Russell than as a spotlighting of Alice Faye and a recreation of the Russell period in New York.

This period, with its Champagne Charleys, horsecars, fabulous jewels and frills and feathers is one of the American old-timers' favorites. It is what present dowagers of the theater mean when they say "the good old days." These days are intriguingly presented, complete with all details including Diamond Jim Brady, Weber and Fields, et al.

Lillian, in the film, sings and acts surprisingly like Alice Faye, and is vocally several bumps and swings ahead of her time. But Faye fans shouldn't mind that; they probably would prefer Alice to yesterday's Lillian (if the latter could return in the flesh) and wonder what Grandpa meant when he raved about the Russell oomph. Alice, aided by some authentic gowns and trappings, including a jeweled corset, demonstrates plenty of that quality.

Driver Finds Front Seat's No Good as Dressing Room.

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. —(AP)— Late for work, Berins Yenter decided he would dress while driving to his office. He got his shirt and socks on successfully but when he tried to pull on his shoes he lost control of the car.

It ran into a field, overturned and was demolished. Yentis, unhurt, promised state patrolmen he "wouldn't use a car for a dressing room again."

CAUSE BLINDNESS

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (INS) — Those glaring headlights on the highway cause blindness for three seconds. This was the finding of tests conducted in Sacramento by the California state division of motor vehicles. During the three seconds an oncoming car, driven at the legal rate of 45 miles an hour, will travel 200 feet with the motorist blinded by glare.

WIDENING OF CROP OUTLET PLAN STUDIED

Federal Government to Put 200 Scientists to Work On Surplus Problem.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The Federal government plans to put to work 200 scientists to discover new uses and wider outlets for surplus crops.

Dr. Henry G. Knight of the Department of Agriculture, said studies will be made to seek new outlets for tobacco, dairy products, apples, vegetables, white potatoes, animal fats, hides, skins and leather.

Knight is chief of the bureau of Agriculture chemistry and engineering, which is directing the establishment of four research laboratories authorized by Congress.

He said the most important research to be undertaken in connection with tobacco will be a program looking toward expanding the uses to nicotine. He said nicotine is highly toxic to insect life and is useful both as a contact insecticide and stomach poison.

"It is in the insecticide field where the greatest hope apparently lies for increased consumption of tobacco products," Knight said.

Of widespread seasonal milk surpluses he said:

"It is planned to carry on work that is hoped will result in the discovery of new and improved materials that may be derived by polymerization or other type of modification and which, because of unique properties, may be commercially utilizabel in the form of molded plastics."

Of the apple surplus he pointed to the development of an improved apple juice, new dried apple products and new uses for pectin, cuticle wax, seed oil and residual pulp of apples.

NAZIS CLAIM 330,000 ARE HELD PRISONER

Say Huge Number of Troops Captured in 'Destructive' Battle of Flanders.

man line around Dunkerque are keeping the Allies under heavy fire without let-up, the communique said.

It reported two destroyers, a patrol boat and a 5,000-ton freighter sunk and a warship, two destroyers and 10 merchant ships damaged by bomb hits in raids yesterday on Dunkerque.

On the other hand, it charged, "the enemy continued air raids against non-military targets in western and southwestern Germany without damaging much last night."

For the second successive day, it said, German air raids "extended as far as the Rhone valley and Marseille" yesterday.

Allied air losses yesterday were 59 planes and German losses, 15, the high command reported.

Along the Maginot-Siegfried front, it said, "the enemy retreated to the Maginot line and left prisoners, weapons and equipment in our hands when our troops made a forward thrust on both sides of Forbach."

Military circles left no doubt that Germany is preparing another lightning stroke against France and Britain, and the week-end bombing of Marseille by the Nazi air force hinted that the curtain is going up on new theaters of war.

Belief that action is being planned on a grand scale was heightened by the publication in morning newspapers of an appeal to "adventuresome, energetic German youth" to volunteer for training as air force officers.

The possibility of Italy's entrance into the war was freely discussed everywhere, but it was evident that Adolf Hitler was not waiting for his axis partner, Premier Mussolini, to make up his mind.

The German war program, it was said, calls for more and immediate action, with or without Italy.

Reports Few Troops Still In Dunkerque.

A SOUTHEAST COAST PORT IN ENGLAND —(AP)— A British sergeant returning from Flanders today said that, so far as he could see, there were very few British troops left in Dunkerque when he departed.

The sergeant, who waited two days on the Dunkerque beaches before boarding a ship for home, said the scene there last night was illuminated by fires that made the night almost as bright as day.

He said German bombers for some unexplainable reason, kept away from the town but continued to raid the troops on the beach as well as the various rescue ships.

This sergeant vouched for the story that the pilot of a German plane, unable to sink a large rowboat carrying 20 soldiers either with his bombs or with his machine guns, resorted to a shower of oil and gasoline.

This he then fired with tracer bullets, ringing the boat with flames.

"They didn't have a dog's chance," said the sergeant.

The latest arrivals from Dunkerque, though unshaved, dirty worn-out, still were cracking jokes. Many did their best to shave and improve their appearance while they stood in the train corridors.

Scarcely a ship returns without visible traces of German attack, such as splinter scars and bullet holes.

How Red Cross nurses stayed at their posts while co-workers were killed or wounded by terrific air and artillery bombardment in the gradually closing death trap around Dunkerque was told by rescued members of the B.E.F.

The nurses, they said, spurned all advice to leave until the last of the B.E.F. wounded be withdrawn across the channel to safety.

"I cannot describe what we feel about those girls," said one wounded tommy as he debarked.

Felt That I Must Tell of Great Relief 'Vendol' Gave

McPherson Avenue Lady Relieved of Pains Once More and Awful Gas in Stomach Only a Memory Since Vendol Relieved Constipation.

MRS. ELIZABETH KOBER

Vendol marches on to new victories in Mansfield and nearby vicinity in many cases that defied all other medicines tried. One recent report is from Mrs. Elizabeth Kober, residing at 121 McPherson Ave., Mansfield, where she keeps house for her sons, who gave permission to publish her experience because she felt she must tell others who suffer about the relief Vendol gave her.

"For some time I had been uncomfortable almost daily from constipation, which caused a long train of other troubles and kept me upset most of the time. One result was that my legs pained so badly I could get no relief either walking, sitting down, or lying down. At night I'd roll and tumble for hours unable to get much rest, then next morning I'd feel week and limp.

"Another was that so much gas formed in my stomach that it pressed around my heart, causing shortness of breath and palpitation, and felt like I might smother and my head swam and ached till I could hardly stand up.

"I began on Vendol and though I have taken this medicine but a short time, I feel I have found the right thing to put me on the road to recovery. It gave me thorough elimination and now the dizzy, splitting headaches no longer bother me, and my legs and body are once more easy, and the terrible gas on my stomach has entirely disappeared, too, and I enjoy fine, restful sleep. I am so much better and stronger in every way that I want other sufferers to know what this wonderful medicine has done and is doing for me."

Vendol is made from extracts of Nature's Roots and Herbs combined with Mild Alkalines that relieve constipation, act as a mild diuretic to the kidneys, which in turn relieve backache, pains in the muscles, headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, upset stomach, and other troubles when due to these causes.

All leading druggists display and sell Vendol and it is especially recommended here by the Central Drug Store.

Rookie Southpaw Limits Lima to Six Hits In Debut

By CHARLES MARTIN

ROARING along on a five-game winning streak the Mansfield Braves today are only one and a half games out of second place in the Ohio State league championship race as they invade Lima to take on the runner-up Pandas tonight.

* * * * *

With "Oddie" Van Nostrand, stocky portsider, giving up six hits and every Brave in the lineup contributing at least one bingle, Mansfield turned back Lima by a 7 to 4 count before some 700 spectators at the Fairground yesterday.

* * * * *

Mansfield's victory enabled it to pick up a game on the league leading Findlay Oilers, who dropped a 10-inning, 7 to 6 decision to Tiffin yesterday.

Manager Dewey Stover will send Bob Arnold against Lima tonight and George Laurila will hurl when the Pandas return to the Fairground to perform before a Mansfield Retail Merchants' employe gathering at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Playing their first tussle since last Tuesday, the Braves came through in excellent shape to aid Van Nostrand register his first league win.

Teeing off against Ed Evans for four tallies in the first stanza, Mansfield hopped into a lead that was never seriously threatened. True, Lima whittled away and cut the Braves' advantage to a 6 to 4 score in the seventh. Van Nostrand, however, improved as the game progressed and was practically invincible the rest of the way.

Van Nostrand was in trouble in several innings but outside of the fifth and seventh when Lima scored all its runs he stemmed every tide.

He was wild and in the hole on several batters only to "rear back" and fog his fast one through to emerge on top. Van Nostrand walked the first two men to face him in the first and second innings, but didn't allow a runner to cross the plate.

After giving up a run in the seventh, Van Nostrand, who pitched in the Central Ohio semi-pro league last season, held the Pandas hitless. He fanned two of the three men facing him in the ninth.

Paced by Howard Beals, Harry Seigbert, Eldon Dice and Stover, the Braves secured 13 hits off Evans and Holton. Four of them were doubles.

When Lima dented the plate three times in the fifth it looked like Van Nostrand might not last. The southpaw, who joined the Braves Wednesday, allowed Cindric to sock out a double and then settled down to hold the Pandas to two bingles.

Mansfield put together three hits to score the four runs in the first, and came back with four more bingles to account for two in the third. Beals' single and Stover's double was good for the last marker in the eighth.

A feature of the contest was the sensational fielding of Al Hundemer. The new second baseman raced into right center field in the sixth inning to take Rhoades' high fly. He caught the ball, fell down as he turned, but held it for the out.

Rain had kept the Braves idle since Tuesday and yesterday was the first time the Mansfield team has played in ideal baseball weather at the Fairground. The outfielders were having a hard time fielding, however, for the turf was slippery.

* * * * *

Beals, Seigbert, Dice and Stover came through with a double and single apiece. Kozak and Weigel paced the Pandas with two bingles. It marked the 17th straight game in which Weigel has hit safely. He got his first hit the first time he was at bat—a single to left.

* * * * *

Mansfield baseball fans will be able to see the Braves in action in a twin bill this week. The Braves entertain Fostoria in a double header Wednesday at the Fairground. The first game will get under way at 2:30 p. m. and the night contest will start at 8 o'clock. A rain check from the afternoon's setto will admit the bearer to the night melee.

Alta Lumbers, Ringside Split Doubleheader

Fisher Limits Alta Softball Team to Two Hits. . In Opener.

Alta Lumber and Ringside Nite club softball teams grabbed a game apiece as the two teams staged a double bill at Blue Goose field yesterday.

The Ringside club won the first game 7 to 2, while the Altas nosed out the Ringsiders 7 to 6 in the final bout.

Dale McKinley, who pitched a no-hitter for the Altas early this season, was shelled for six hits in the opener as the Nite club boys piled up seven runs to Altas two. Fisher, Ringside hurler, permitted only two men to safety out of the 22 bombers who faced him.

Although the Altas were held to four hits in the second game, they managed to belt the apple when they needed it. The Ringside team found Brown, hurler for the Altas in the second game, for six hits and turned them into six runs but failed to make the grade as the Altas squeezed them out 7 to 6.

* * *

Hitting honors in yesterday's contests went to Knelling of the Altas and Friday and Berry of the Ringside club. Knelling hit a homer in the second game, while Friday and Berry bagged a three-base hit each in the opener.

Babe Didrikson Equals Record

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Babe Didrikson, now Mrs. George Zaharias, equaled the women's course record at Manakiki with a 76 and today she could blame a missed short putt for her failure to set a new mark. She put together scores of 37-39 for the mark, while her husband, a wrestler, was shooting 83 and Bob Harlow, former manager of Walter Hagen, carded a 79.

FREMONT ENTRENCHED MORE DEEPLY IN CELLAR

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Week-end play entrenched Fremont more deeply in the Ohio State league cellar, but brought no changes in the standings.

Findlay continued to hold first despite a 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of the Tiffin Hens yesterday. Lima crushed Fostoria 15 to 1 Saturday, and fell before Mansfield 7 to 4 in Sunday's tilt. Fremont lost to Tiffin 3 to 1 Sunday.

Open Season With Twin Softball Victories Over Jewelers.

IT APPEARS as if the Sons of Herman softball team is out to mark up an impressive record this season.

The Hermans, who played under the DeLuxe Cab banner last year, opened their season in impressive fashion at Liberty park yesterday by handing the touted Lorain Hart Jewelers a twin defeat.

Jimmy Fullager hurled three-hit ball as the Hermans won the first contest, 9 to 0, and the Mansfield team made good use of two hits in the second affray to take a 3 to 2 decision.

Manager Frank Beeber's combine had an easy time of it in the initial setto, but had to stage a two-run rally in the last of the seventh to take the seven-inning nightcap. Harry Ross hit a home run in the second tussle.

Scoring three times in the opening frame of the first game, the Hermans hopped into the lead and maintained it all the way. They added two in the second and four in the sixth to make Fullager's task an easy one.

Freddie Carver and Doslak tangled in a pitching duel in the second. Lorain found Carver for four hits, but couldn't produce with runners on base. Ross's homer was the deciding factor.

Both clubs pushed over a run in the first and the score remained deadlocked until the seventh when the Jewelers again dented the plate to take a 2 to 1 lead.

George Hummel and Ed Hendrich led the Hermans at the plate in the one-sided win with a double and single apiece.

Expects Some Red Hurler to Pitch No-Hitter

Writer Looks at Week's Record and Says It's In the Cards.

By JOHN FRYE.

CINCINNATI—Write this on the wall somewhere (high, so the little woman won't see it):

One of these days soon maybe some pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds is going to throw himself a no-hitter. It's in the cards and maybe it'll be the St. Louis Cards.

The argument:

From Sunday to Sunday Manager Bill McKechnie's pitchers have to their credit: One one-hitter, three four-hitters, one five-hitter. For ten games in eight days, that is a showing, and if you think the opposition likes it, ask some sluggers like Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize of the Cards, Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh, and Max West of Boston.

Another point worth noting is how close some of the boys have come to the glory games. In taking his five-hit, ninth straight win yesterday, 11 to 1, unbeaten Bucky Walters held the Boston Bees hitless until one man was out in the sixth.

Although the Reds lost the nightcap of the doubleheader, 2 to 0 Milkman Jim Turner cut down all but one of the first 18 men to face him. Max West, who walked in the fifth, was eliminated by a double-play. Four hits were all the Bees had to work on for their victory.

The way the Reds were treating the ball, Walters had an easy time of it. Before Aloysius Piechota, Casey Stengel's starter, had had his warm-up throws he was out of the game. Three singles, Ernie Lombardi's double, and the first of Johnny Rizzo's two homers produced five runs.

* * *

Rizzo's second homer with Bill Werber aboard made two more in the third, and the rest came as the Reds pleased.

Golfers Bust Par Figures

Ben Hogan Blasts Out Four-Under-Par 68 Score.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Forecasts of the winning score for the National open golf tournament came in for some changes today in view of par-cracking preliminary rounds by the game's heavy hitters.

Canterbury's 6,933-yard par-72 layout was so rain soaked over the week-end that water sloshed under foot and balls took almost no roll. Temporary greens were used in advance of the regular holes.

But Ben Hogan, the Texas plainsman, blasted out 36-32—68, four under par. Jimmy Thompson, one of the game's longest drivers, came in with 34-36—70. Johnny Bulla, another slugger, had scored a 71.

So—Olin Dutra's crack "give me 290, a mint julep and a seat in the clubhouse," didn't seem such a sure bet.

Greenskeepers protected the greens for tournament play starting Thursday and set the flags in fairway length grass. Consequently putts were short and the scores not to be underrated despite the shortened yardage.

* * *

John Montague of Los Angeles, Ralph Guldahl, champion in 1937 and 1938, and Jimmy Hines of New York toured the course but turned in no scores.

3 GRADE SCHOOL CLUBS WIN OVER WEEK-END

Newman, Hedges, and Carpenter grade schools came off the victors in three grade school league contests played on school diamonds over the week-end.

SOME Catch--For the Fish!

Liberty Park Defeats Ontario In Opening N. C. O. Contest

LIBERTY Park's baseball club drove in seven runs to Ontario's five to cop their inaugural game in the North Central Ohio baseball league yesterday on the Ontario diamond.

Beer toed the rubber for the Mansfield team, while Patterson took over the mound duties for the Ontario club. Beer permitted nine hits to Patterson's eight.

* * *

Remy and Schmidt of the Liberty Park nine and Hamman of the Ontario club copped hitting honors in yesterday's contest by blasting out two hits apiece. Schmidt, however, was most effective hitter of the day with a double and a single out of four trips to the plate.

Ontario bobbled four times and Mansfield three times.

Give Conn 6 to 5 Chance to Win

DETROIT—(INS)—Billy Conn today was no better than a 6 to 5 choice to retain his light heavyweight boxing championship against Gus Lesnevich in a 15-round bout in Olympia Stadium Wednesday night.

In a nine round drill Sunday afternoon, Lesnevich battered three sparring partners and turned in an all-round performance that caused fight followers to rally to his support.

Lesnevich completed heavy training Sunday night and will not don the gloves again until he steps into the ring Wednesday.

REESE RECOVERING FROM SEVERE CONCUSSION

CHICAGO — (INS) — Harold ("Pee Wee") Reese, brilliant rookie shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was reported to be recovering satisfactorily today from a severe concussion suffered Saturday when he was struck on the head by a ball during the Dodgers-Chicago Cubs game. It was first feared Reese, who had to be carried from the field, had suffered a skull fracture.

LEAGUE PLAYS TODAY

Merchant Girls Split Twin Bill With Kent Club

Drop 1st Game, 6 to 5, But Come Back to Win Second, 3 to 2.

MANSFIELD Merchant girls softball team split a doubleheader with the Kent Erie Restaurant team of Kent, O., yesterday as the two teams squared off on the North Lake park diamond.

The Merchants dropped the first tilt by a scant 6 to 5 margin, then came back in the second game to nose out the Kent team by a 3 to 2 tally.

In the opener the Kent team smashed out 13 hits to the Merchants 5, to cop the blue ribbon. A home run by Shuster of the Merchants almost won the ball game for the Mansfield team, but the visitors pushed over the deciding run in the eighth, then held the Merchants scoreless in their half of the final frame.

Clark, Merchant's top mound artist, held the Kent team well in check in the final game, allowing the restaurant girls only three hits. Although Persing, who toed the rubber for the visitors; duplicated Clark's performance, the Merchants managed to get their hits when they needed them.

Dayton Leaps To 3rd Place

Takes Two In a Row From Akron Yankees.

DAYTON —(AP)— It took 24 innings, but the determined Dayton Wings swept two in a row from the Akron Yankees to leap from fifth to third place in the Mid-Atlantic league standings.

Completing 47 innings of baseball in two days—eight of which didn't count — Dayton downed Akron 2 to 1 in yesterday's 14-inning opener and came back to win the 10-inning finale 8 to 7. Saturday night Dayton lost a 15-inning tilt to Akron 4 to 3 and the nightcap ended in a 0 to 0 tie at midnight after eight innings.

* * *

The double victory boosted the Wings over both Akron and Youngstown, the latter plummeting to the cellar under double drubbings—3 to 2 and 4 to 2 from the Charleston Senators.

Canton continued to pace the pack by splitting a twin bill with the second place Portsmouth Red Birds. The Terriers snatched the opener 4 to 1, but dropped the second 6 to 4.

Saturday night Canton handed Portsmouth a 5 to 4 defeat while wet grounds kept Charleston and Youngstown idle.

* * *

Today's schedule: Akron at Charleston, Dayton at Canton, and Portsmouth at Youngstown.

UNDERGRADUATE BUILDS WINNING BASEBALL TEAM

CHICAGO —(AP)— Stan Klores has set a high standard for himself in his first year as Northwestern's varsity baseball coach.

A 24-year-old undergraduate, Klores took the job this spring from Burt Ingwersen, who retired to devote all his time to the fortunes of wildcat football. Klores developed a winner and piloted the team to the co-championship of the Big Ten, first diamond title ever held by the school.

Uses No. 7 Iron to Score Hole-in-One on No. 18 At Westbrook.

By GEORGE SATTLER

JIM HOFFMAN became the second Westbrook Country club member to join the ranks of golfdom's Hall of Fame this season by scoring a hole-in-one on the eighteen hole Saturday.

Using a number seven iron, Hoffman drove the green, where the ball took a bounce and dribbled into the cup. The eighteenth is 165 yards long and is a par three.

Three weeks ago E. E. Hoovler accomplished the same feat by scoring a hole-in-one on Westbrook's fifteenth hole, which is also a par three.

Playing with Hoffman Saturday were Paul Stevens and M. D. Ward, city solicitor.

Yesterday's golfers at the Possum Run course were lead by Al Kushin, who turned in a 71 card for the 18 holes. It was the only sub-par score turned in over the week-end. Par at Possum is 72.

Following close behind Kushin was Joe Mayer, last year's Possum Run champion, who scored a 73, and Carl Kushin who also traveled the 18 for a 73.

* * *

Other low scores turned in at Possum yesterday were a pair of 77's by Carl Wiseman and John Kleshenski.

Colonels Move Back Into 4th

Cop 3rd Straight by Licking Indianapolis, 7 to 4.

(By Associated Press)

The Louisville Colonels apparently have decided to at least make a stab at living up to the glowing predictions made for them in the American association race.

The Colonels moved back into fourth place yesterday by notching their third straight victory, a 7 to 4 decision over third-place Indianapolis.

Kansas City split a double header with Milwaukee and enabled Minneapolis to gain a half game in its battle for the top spot. The Blues dropped the first contest, 7 to 4, but took the second, 6-0, on Charles Stanceu's three-hit pitching.

Minneapolis snatched a slugfest from St. Paul's basement team, 9 to 3. Columbus and Toledo broke even in a twin bill. The Birds copped the opener, 4 to 3, but were helpless before ex-American leaguer Johnny Whitehead who set the Birds down with four hits to register a 3 to 0 victory.

Mansfield High Golf Club Wins Last Match

Coach V. H. Oberlander's Mansfield high golf team closed its 1940 season with a 12½ to 3½ victory over Mt. Vernon Saturday. It was the Mansfielders' eighth win in 10 starts. Harold Hellman was low for the winners Saturday with a 71, while Milt Nadason came through with a 74 and Al Hager finished third by socking out a 75.

Billiard Defeat Dover Club, 11-10

The Moon Billiards edged the Dover Lions A. C. baseball club, 11 to 10, at Tillman's park Sunday. The winners were trailing, 10 to 9, going into the ninth, but staged a two-run rally to cop the decision.

Truly hit a double and triple to pace the Billiards at the plate. L. Finley of the Dover team hit a home run. The box score was incomplete.

Tigers Creep To Within One Game of Tribe

Indians Remain Two Games Behind League-Leading Red Sox.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians felt hot Tiger breath on their necks today as they aimed their heavy-hitting war clubs at evening up their four-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

The Detroit Bengals crept up to within one game of the Tribe as the Indians split a Sunday double header here. Cleveland remained two games behind the league-leading Boston Red Sox.

More than 35,000 fans saw Bob Feller win his eighth victory in the first game, 7 to 2. But the Philadelphians walked all over a parade of second-spring pitchers to take the second ame 12 to 6.

Feller allowed eight hits. He was aided by Hal Trosky's 13th home run of the season and Lou Boudreau's third homer.

The Indian clubs kept swinging for 14 hits in the second game. The Tribe jumped on John Babich for four runs in the first three innings, but the Athletics knocked out Mike Naymick with a three-run blast in the fourth.

Johnny Humphries and Bill Zuber went the same way in a seven-run Philadelphia romp in the seventh inning Joe Dobson had to finish out despite five innings of work the preceding day.

Catcher Rollie Hemsley took a beating, being knocked out by a foul tip, hit on the head with a bat and staggered by another foul.

* * *

Al Milnar was scheduled to try for his seventh pitching victory for the Indians today, opposed by Chubby Dean who has two decisions over the New York Yankees to his credit.

Ted Lyons Still Best 'Sunday' Moundsman

By JUDSON BAILEY

THE best "Sunday pitcher" in baseball business right now is that grizzly veteran of the Chicago White Sox, Ted Lyons, who has been with the same club for 17 years.

* * *

Born in 1900, the same year as Lefty Grove, Lyons came to the American League direct from the campus of Baylor University in 1923, two years before Grove, and still is going strong.

In fact he is the strongest gear in the Sox' well-worn driveshaft today with four victories and two defeats. Chicago has played nine games in the last seven days and won three. Of these, Lyons won two.

This spring he has pitched every Sunday except one that it rained and he showed up at Fenway Park, Boston, yesterday on schedule. The result was a 6-0 shutout of the league-leading Red Sox on six hits. It was his 225th major league triumph.

The Red Sox recovered from this masterful going over sufficiently to beat out Chicago 10-8 in the second game with Jimmie Foxx notching his 13th home run.

The fact that the Cleveland Indians also divided a double bill with the Philadelphia Athletics left the American League squabble in status quo. Cleveland won 7-2, then lost 12-6.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers whacked a game off the margin separating them and the pace-making Cincinnati Reds by squeezing two one-run decisions out of the Chicago Cubs, 3-2 and 2-1.

The Reds divided two games with the Boston Bees, winning the first game, 11-1. Boston won the second 2-0.

Pittsburgh edged out the New York Giants 2-1 in the eighth inning after Bob Klinger and Hal Schumacher each had pitched seven runless frames, but New York bounced back to take the second game 7-3.

At St. Louis two pitchers chalked up their first wins of the season. Boom Boom Beck of the Phillies stopped the Cards 4-2 on seven hits and Bob Bowman gave the same amount in winning for St. Louis, 9-2. John Mize hit his 13th and 14th home runs in the second game.

The world champion Yankees continued their upward surge at the expense of the St. Louis Browns with two triumphs, 13-4 and 11-1. Marius Russo and Marvin Breuer gave two well-pitched games.

* * *

Detroit took a single game from the Washington Senators 8-6. Hank Greenberg hit two-run homer in the first. More than 200,000 fans turned out for the games in eight cities.

High-Priced

You're looking at a very high-priced college baseball player, already being compared to Herb Pennock, the one-time Yankee pitching star. He is Porter Vaughn, University of Richmond, left-hander, who will receive a bonus of $8,000 for signing with the Philadelphia Athletics when he is graduated from college in June. This is one of the largest bonuses ever paid to a college baseball player.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—My wife, who has proved herself a second columnist on more than one occasion, yesterday parachuted down on the Yankee stadium and managed to land in the special section of seats reserved for the wives of the Yankee players.

She had been fully equipped by me with the proper pencils and notebooks, and by nature with the necessary nose for newsy gossip. During the double-header with the St. Louis Browns she dutifully collected information on the behavior of Yankee wives during the games and brought it back to what I like to consider is general headquarters.

After the necessary deletion of notes concerning such matters as hats, dresses, shoes, recipes and babies, here is what I found that might interest you:

There are five Yankee wives who never miss a game, be it hot or cold, the Browns or the Red Sox. . . . They are Dorothy Gordon, Dorothy DiMaggio, Frances Chandler, Josephine Dahlgren, and Jessie Hadley. . . . All of those who miss games do not do so voluntarily. . . . For instance, Martha Keller stays at home with the baby while Charley is playing and listens to the game on the radio.

Violet Dickey, on the other hand, lives in an apartment which overlooks the stadium and she can take her daughter "Tooy" and see the game from a living room window at the same time.

There is a tremendous feeling of camaradierie among the wives while their husbands are fighting to retain their world's championship. . . . When Marius Russo, who pitched the first game, got into temporary difficulty, the wives all turned to Mrs. Russo and offered encouragement and assured her that her left-handed husband would weather the storm.

When DiMaggio hit a home run into the left field stands the girls all stood up, shook Dorothy DiMaggio's hand vigorously, and gave her the feminine equivalent of an assist. Hand-shaking is limited to extra base hits. . . . A single by a husband draws only a nod of approval or a girlish poke in the back.

The spirit of comaradierie, between the wives extends even to dinner and supper menus. . . . Whenever a Yankee player has an exceptionally good day at bat—say three for four or four for five—the other wives call his home and find out what he had for dinner the night before.

Whatever it was, the other husbands are served the same dish the following night. . . . There are other superstitions too. . . . Vi Dickey, for example, uses an old gypsy ritual to get Bill out of a batting slump.

When he isn't hitting she walks around a broom five times on the day of a game, stomps her foot on each complete circle, and says "one hit, two hits, three hits, four hits and five hits." . . . It is estimated that during Bill's recent slump Vi walked 17 miles and wore out four brooms. . . .

GOATS—Bill Lee, Chicago Cubs pitcher, who went into the ninth inning of the first game leading Brooklyn, 2 to 1 out wound up losing on a Dodger rally, 3 to 2; Martin Marion, St. Louis Cardinal shortstop, who lost Art Mahan's pop fly in the sun enabling the Phillies to rally for four runs, win the opener and split a doubleheader.

Two Jumps and Martin Marion Finds Himself in Big Leagues

By OSCAR KAHAN

ST LOUIS—(AP)—You notice his hands first, even before his shy, boyish face.

They're large, capable hands, with long, bony fingers, and his wrists are strong and flexible.

A look at those hands helps you realize why Martin Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals is such an adept, sure fielder at shortstop. A baseball disappears in the rookie's grasp.

Marion, only 22 years old, had played regularly from the time he attended a tryout camp at Rome, Ga., and signed a contract with the Cardinal organization until an injury laid him up for a week or so this spring.

It's a wonder he's playing baseball at all.

When he was 10 years old, he fell and broke his right thigh bone. The fracture knitted improperly. For a year, Martin was in a hospital bed and for another year he used crutches.

His mother was against baseball after that because she was afraid he'd get hurt again, but the boy wanted to play and he did.

At Tech High in Atlanta, Marion had his biggest baseball thrill, hitting a home run with two men on base to defeat Boys high, 3 to 0. The Boys high pitcher was Jim Bagby, now with the Boston Red Sox.

Marion has three brothers, and two of them are also professional baseball players—Roy with Sanford, Fla., and John with Greenville, S. C.

Marion says, with shy pride, that when he left high school he was the best draftsman Tech had turned out in years and he was determined to go on to college. A high school teammate, Johnny Echols, was responsible for the change in Marion's plans.

Echols wanted to go to the try-out camp at Rome in 1935 and he asked Marion to go with him. The boys reached camp during the last two days and Marion played only an inning or two. Scouts saw possibilities in the gangling youngster and offered him a contract.

Marion first turned it down because of his college plans and it was several months before he signed.

The lanky, underweight youth—he's 6 feet 2 inches tall now and weighs 168 pounds—was assigned to the Huntington, W. Va., club of the Middle Atlantic league for the 1936 season. Only 18 years old, he was homesick. He remembered with a grin that he started off so poorly a sports writer referred to him as a "truck-horse." But before the season was over, he was fielding with a graceful prowess.

From the Class C Huntington club, the Cardinals jumped Marion all the way to the Class AA Rochester team of the international league in 1937, quite a jump.

"As a matter of fact," Marion admitted with candor unusual in a ballplayer, "it was too big a jump. But Ray Blades, Rochester's manager then, liked me and kept me around."

Marion played shortstop regularly at Rochester for three seasons and this year made the big step to the major leagues.

"He's a fine defensive shortstop," says Blades, who became manager of the Cardinals last year. "If he hits .250 against National league pitching he will help us."

Marion prefers fielding to batting. In a questionnaire sent out by the Cardinals in 1936, and again in 1937, he said hitting was the "toughest" thing for him to do in baseball.

Patient coaching at Rochester, though, helped raise his batting average from .246 in 1937 to .272 last year. Now, under the tutelage of Mike Gonzales, the Cardinals' shrewd Cuban coach, Marion is showing power at bat. He needs about 10 or 20 pounds more on his spare frame, Gonzales believes, "to hit them over anybody's head, you see what I say."

Preventing a run by the opposing team frequently is almost as good as scoring one yourself. Marion's fielding will do just that for the Cardinals.

* * *

An instance in an early season game with the Chicago Cubs, Hank Leiber was at bat in the ninth inning, with the bases loaded, two men out and the score tied. He smashed a vicious grounder between short and third. Marion went way over to the grass, made a sensational stop and a long throw that nipped Leiber at first. The Cardinals won the game in the tenth inning.

Homesites For Sale
The first step to owning your own home and stop paying rent is to purchase a lot, so that it will not be a financial burden to build your home. That lot should be improved, all improvements such as water, gas, electricity and street improvement should be in and paid for—building restrictions should be imposed and allotment should be approved FHA. That is the case in Country Club Addition. The first cost is the only cost. Lots are priced below improvement costs. $100 to $350 with payments as low as $5 monthly. Drive out and see for yourself. TRADERS MOVE CAUTIOUSLY IN UNEASY MARKET

Report of Bombing of Paris Cools Off Early Bullish Sentiment on Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Traders, awaiting the next European war shift, moved warily in today's stock market. Near the fourth hour losses of 1 to 2 points were well distributed.

Bullish sentiment was chilled a bit by bulletins telling of the bombing of Paris. At the same time relative lightness of selling was encouraging.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. "Free" sterling and the French franc dipped in terms of the dollar.

Attracting mild support were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Smelting, Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, Freeport Sulphur, Pennsylvania and Great Northern.

Brightening the business picture was word that shipments of Lake Superior iron ore from the United States and Canadian upper lake ports in may were the largest for any similar month since 1937.

Market followers were encouraged by the survey of the magazine "Steel" which found domestic bookings heavy in addition to expanding demand from the Allies and neutral countries.

Schenck, Film Mogul, Indicted On Income Tax Charge

FILM COMPANY HEAD ACCUSED BY GRAND JURY

Perjury Accusation Grows Out Of $100,000 Loan Made To Willie Bioff.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Joseph F. Schenk, president and chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of income tax fraud.

Joseph H. Moskowitz, who served as bookkeeper for Schenck at $52,000 a year, also was named in the counts of the indictment relating to income tax conspiracy.

The fraud counts are based on the government contention that Schenck set up fictitious gross income losses by the purported sale of stock to Hollywood friends and that he listed as business expenses disbursements which actually were personal in nature.

In 1937, it was said, Schenck claimed to have spent $89,385 to earn $118,080.

The perjury count stems from federal investigation of a $100,000 loan to William Bioff, Hollywood union official, who now is serving a jail term in Chicago on an 18-year-old pandering charge.

Schenck, it is charged, claimed to know very little about the loan and told James A. Renayne, a special agent with the internal revenue bureau, in May, 1938, that he did not know whether the loan had been repaid.

Federal investigators charged that the loan, granted shortly after a strike by Bioff's union was called off, was made to the union official through Arthur Stebbin, the film executive's nephew.

They allege that Schenck eventually repaid the loan to himself.

STRICKEN WHILE ASLEEP IN AUTO

Mansfield Woman's Husband Awakens, Finds Mate Dead From Heart Attack.

Coroner Hugh Winbigler said today that a heart attack caused the death of Mrs. Ethel Knox, 49, of 92 South Diamond street, who died early Sunday while sleeping in her husband's car on Main street in Lexington.

Mrs. Knox's body was found by the husband, Arthur Knox, when he awoke about 6 a. m. Sunday. The couple had gone to sleep in the car after driving to Lexington following an all night fishing trip to the southern part of the county.

He found the body slumped forward in the coupe. Coroner Winbigler said Mrs. Knox apparently had been dead for several hours. Knox drove to the Snyder funeral home, Lexington, with the body.

Attaches of the funeral home said they had been unable to learn whether Mrs. Knox had relatives in the Mansfield area. Funeral arrangements had not been completed at noon today.

Attaches at the funeral home said they had not been able to contact Knox. He left the mortuary after taking the body there, they said.

BOOST CITY FOR PLANE PLANTS

Chamber Sends Letters, Citing Advantages Mansfield Offers For Plane Industry.

this noon, Tappan said the principal local task was to interest Civil Aeronautics Authority officials in the Mansfield airport as a site for training should the bills, now before congress, be approved.

Plans were laid for urging government officials to locate a military training center at the airport and to extend the civilian pilot training program which has already been established here as one of the three centers in Ohio.

Officials will argue that the centrally-located Mansfield airport is an ideal base with adequate space, not congested with airline traffic.

The chamber's letters to plane manufacturing companies cited the advantages of Mansfield in that it was located in the heart of the region advocated for production of war materials by the president two weeks ago.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the chamber, said more than 25 letters had already been sent to the nation's leading plane companies recommending Mansfield for location of plants in event of decentralization of plane manufacturing as suggested by President Roosevelt.

STEEL RATE UP

National Operations Climb to 80 Per Cent of Capacity.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Steel mills in the United States will jump operating schedules to 80.3 per cent of capacity this week, an increase of 3.4 points from the preceding week and the highest since late January, the American Iron & Steel institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 65.8 percent of capacity and a year ago 54.2 per cent.

CALLS NATIONAL GUARDSMEN FOR PATROL SERVICE

Gov. Lehman Acts to Protect Armories, Arsenals and Military Equipment.

ALBANY—(INS)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman today ordered 500 members of the national guard and naval militia into active service to guard the states armories, arsenals, camps and military equipment.

The governor acted after a conference with Adjutant-General Ames Brown.

"It is purely a precautionary measure," the governor said. "It has no significance other than that we want to protect fully our armories and the equipment which they contain."

Governor Lehman also ordered all armories closed to the public and decreed that they be used strictly for military purposes.

Members of the militia ordered to duty comprise 450 guardsmen and 50 members of the naval militia.

GOVERNORS NOTIFIED

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Federal national guard officials revealed today that the governors of all of the 48 states had been notified recently of their legal obligation to take the utmost precaution in guarding armories and equipment entrusted state militia by the war department.

The governors were told to keep close watch on such properties in view of the possibility of sabotage and theft of rifles and munitions by any subversive groups.

New York State, in the opinion of officials, is more subject to possible sabotage efforts than other areas.

NO OHIO PRECAUTIONS

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Adjutant Gilson D. Light said today that no unusual precautionary measures had been inaugurated in Ohio to protect armories, state arsenals or military equipment.

"Some time ago extra guards were placed at the arsenal and most of our armories have always been protected day and night by resident caretakers," General Light declared.

AVIATION NEWS—

FLYING MEDICO BACK; MORE ASK INSTRUCTIONS

Flood of Applications Made as City Acts to Obtain U. S. Training Center.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Dr. M. C. Oakes of Lexington, one of Mansfield's flying medicos, who has been doing post graduate work at Harvard university returned this week and has been spending most of his time in the air.

Oakes needs 15 hours for renewal of his private pilot's license before he returns to school Saturday. Incidentally, at completion of his work July 1 at Harvard he will go to Yale university as resident physician, a position which places him on the faculty of the school.

The war is doing things to commercial aviation that makes it a likely field for young fellows just out of school and seeking employment.

Because the army and navy are taking every qualified flier they can lay their hands on good air line pilots are hard to get these days, according to the fellows in the flying business.

Commercial aviation is expanding, just as the army and navy forces are—but the government gets first call on the supply of pilots and the supply as we well know is definitely limited.

Air officials say that once no major airline would even consider a job application from a pilot who could not show at least 1,200 hours in the air. Today that has changed and a pilot with 200 hours of flying to his credit can get work quickly—the fact is, flight schools can't turn them out fast enough.

As pointed out by one official, that doesn't mean that the airlines are entrusting their giant transport planes to less capable men but that they have had to go into the pilot-training business themselves and a 200-hour pilot will get weeks or months of flying in a company training plane before he is made a co-pilot on a regular run.

The campaign by local flying city and American Legion officials to have the war department set up one of its proposed training centers at the airport has resulted in a flood of applications for instruction.

Although the proposal is still in its infancy and nothing has yet been determined by the army as to where the schools will be located, more than a score of applicants have listed their names with James R. "Bud" Harrington for training.

Most of the applicants include student fliers and those who recently passed the CAA's ground school course but were not among the first 10 selected for flight training in the CPT.

These nine youths and lone girl that make up the CPT class have been getting their instructions under the most adverse weather condition, which is a good omen, Harrington says, and should produce 10 first class pilots. Yesterday was the first fair weather they have had since flight instruction started.

Among the new students enrolled for instruction is Tommy (Commercial Motor freight) Jones' new wife. Tom was married several weeks ago and since he spends most of his time at the airfield he convinced Mrs. Jones that she should learn to fly so she won't have to stay home alone. Others included William Warner, Charles Feinberg, John Fisher and Dwight Terrell.

ACT ON ROAD

Commissioners Propose To Vacate 3 Sections of It.

County commissioners today had proposed to vacate short sections of three roads in Weller, Jefferson, and Washington townships. They set June 24 for hearings on the proposed abandonments.

Included in the proposal are a .9 of a mile section of the Anderson road in Washington township, a .7 of a mile section of the Shafer road in Jefferson township, and a .7 mile section of the Brubaker Creek road in Weller township.

If the little used roads are abandoned following the hearings, the area occupied by them will revert to the owners of properties adjoining the roads.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JUNE 3, 1940.

Everything is so confusing these days that little attention is paid to such a headline as "Five Dionne Girls Are Now Six."

Twenty-four two-toed sloths have been received in New York. These are said to be the laziest creatures in captivity—but some folks may contend that the example isn't needed.

Communists Oppose Defense Program

PROTECTION of minorities, in the rights accorded them under the Constitution, is one of the fine things in a democracy and one which should be zealously guarded in the United States.

There is, however, an apparent misunderstanding among some persons associated with minority groups, as to their obligation of loyalty to the government under which they are living, regardless of their own opinions, and consequent unwillingness to accept the principle of majority rule, which must be a part of orderly government.

Take, for instance, the action of the Communist party of the United States, at its nominating convention in New York City last Saturday, in adopting a platform plank which opposes the national defense program and calls for support of "the peace policy of the Soviet Union."

"Not a cent, not a gun, not a man for war preparations and the imperialist war! Resist the militarization and armaments program of the administration and congress." This, in part, was the text of the platform plank adopted by the Communist party, under leadership of Earl Browder, who was again nominated for president.

In the 1936 national election, Browder, as Communist nominee for president, received 80,159 votes out of a total of 45,646,817 cast for all candidates.

"Resist the militarization and armaments program of the administration and congress . . . support the peace policy of the Soviet Union," says Browder and his minority group to the millions of loyal Americans who, while hoping and praying that the United States can be kept out of war, have expressed approval of a sane defense program by which this country may be saved from annihilation in the event of attack by any foreign power.

In the earnest efforts that have been made in this country to protect minorities of all sorts, even to the extent or granting the greatest of individual freedom, there has been no acceptance of an idea that any of these minorities is to be permitted to assume the governing functions of the majority, or to indulge in subversive activities detrimental to the welfare of the nation as a whole.

The sooner this attitude of the majority is explained to aggressive minority groups bent on making over the United States government in accordance with the alien "isms" to which they adhere, the better it will be for them and for the nation.

Canada Still Invites Tourists

FOLKS to whom Canada is a summer playground have been worried by sudden agitation at Ottawa for stricter scrutiny of visitors. During the winter and spring, Canadian tourist officials have been insisting that the war would make no difference, and vacationers and business agents from this side of the border could enter as freely and informally as ever. But it is now feared that proposals made by Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe of the federal government, for the purpose of barring many aliens, might discourage tourists by making their entrance more difficult.

Canadian tourist officials are frankly alarmed, and fear to lose the good will and the no less good dollars brought with them in recent years by millions of Americans. This vacation industry has been counted on, too, by Canadian government financiers, to help balance their war budget. Such contributions from this side of the line, in a good year, run up to several hundred million dollars.

It is obviously a real problem for Canada to protect a 3,000-mile border from dangerous aliens, without making things unpleasant for honest neighbors and friends. But it can probably be worked out satisfactorily. Americans, for their part, can afford to be good sports about it, cheerfully taking a few more minutes to answer a few more questions than usual, and making it easier by having credentials or identification papers with them.

Air Stewardesses Make Good

STEWARDESS service on America's commercial air lines is only ten years old. Eight young women were employed ten years ago and told that their jobs were strictly in the nature of an experiment. They were to serve meals in the air, make passengers comfortable, identify points of interest and help in other ways to make the journey pleasurable for passengers. At the start they made one trip a day between San Francisco and Chicago.

The pioneers had to meet the hostility of pilots and operating personnel. They worked in planes that were noisier and less comfortable—and far less safe—than today's. Passengers were few, and the stewardess had to discover their duties anew every trip, for they varied from day to day.

Officials of the experimenting air line soon noticed that passengers began to specify flights served by stewardesses and most of the repeaters in travel by air were passengers who had been served by those cheerful young ladies carving out a new career for women.

Today there are about 500 girls on the domestic air lines of the United States. They are carefully selected and specially trained, and they are such competent and charming persons that their average period of service is only twenty months, as they have to leave the service when they marry—which most of them do.

Sensible Spending by Farmers

A STUDY of 188 Iowa families brought out a surprising fact about the financial habits of the average farm family. Both their incomes and their expenditures increased in 1939 over 1938, but the spending did not increase in the same proportion as the income.

The 30 families highest in the income list averaged $4,000 more income than the year before, but they spent only $722 more than the low income group. Their increased spending went for such sensible things as repairs on the house and new durable equipment. Nearly 50 of the families electrified their farms last year.

There were increases, though smaller in amounts, in spending for recreation, education, gifts, clothing, health, and household operation. This could hardly be called "splurging," but indicates common sense spending.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The dream of a man now dead may be dragged from its pigeon-hole to give the United States a potential army that needs salute no power in the world.

Less than four years ago, the late Major Robert Fechner, then director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, told friends, intimates and superiors that the CCC should give rich and poor alike the opportunity for training, which, "in war or peace" would make America the most powerful nation on earth.

Certain — and probably correctly so—that American people would not stand for militarization of the CCC, Major Fechner's superiors soft-pedaled his hymn. Congress cried down bills to put this concentration of healthy, hungry American youth on a military basis. His dream of a melting pot of horny-handed labor under military discipline was dissolved in politics.

Time Changes Opinions.

BUT less than four years later, a bill is introduced—and conceded some chance of passing—to place the 300,000 youths in CCC under optional military training. James J. McEntee, present CCC director, is proud to state that his organization "has turned out 2,400,000 young men who are 75 to 80 per cent equipped to become good soldiers."

Mr. McEntee, a labor man (selected from the ranks of union executives), has concentrated on equipping the CCC boys to make their own way in many fields of industrial labor.

Only a week or so ago, 85 young men left west coast CCC camps to take skilled jobs in six aircraft companies which are speeding production of military planes.

More recently than that, the CCC "graduated" 500 young men to the United States Maritime commission, bringing the total to 900 CCC boys who, in the last year, have been chosen for training in merchant shipping.

The average period of work in the CCC for white youths has been a little more than nine months, for Negro boys about 13 months. The CCC has turned out efficient, if not expert workers in construction, clerking, cookery, handling of Diesel engines, explosives, mapmaking, telephone work, auto, tractor, radio, and aviation mechanics.

Tested By Fire, Flood.

IN ADDITION, Mr. McEntee points out that the boys invariably follow a sound health routine, learn how to live together, and how to take orders.

These activities are going on in 1,500 camps today. Appropriations have been made for maintaining that number next year. And suddenly the legislators and government executives, faced with the ghastly tragedy in Europe and the possibilities of repercussions in America, have become aware of these camps as something more than a relief project.

Could it be that for a second time this modern holocaust has raised up another prophet who was without honor when he lived? Will Major Fechner, with his dream of a compulsory militarized CCC take his place with the late Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, the man who knew too soon the value of a great air force?

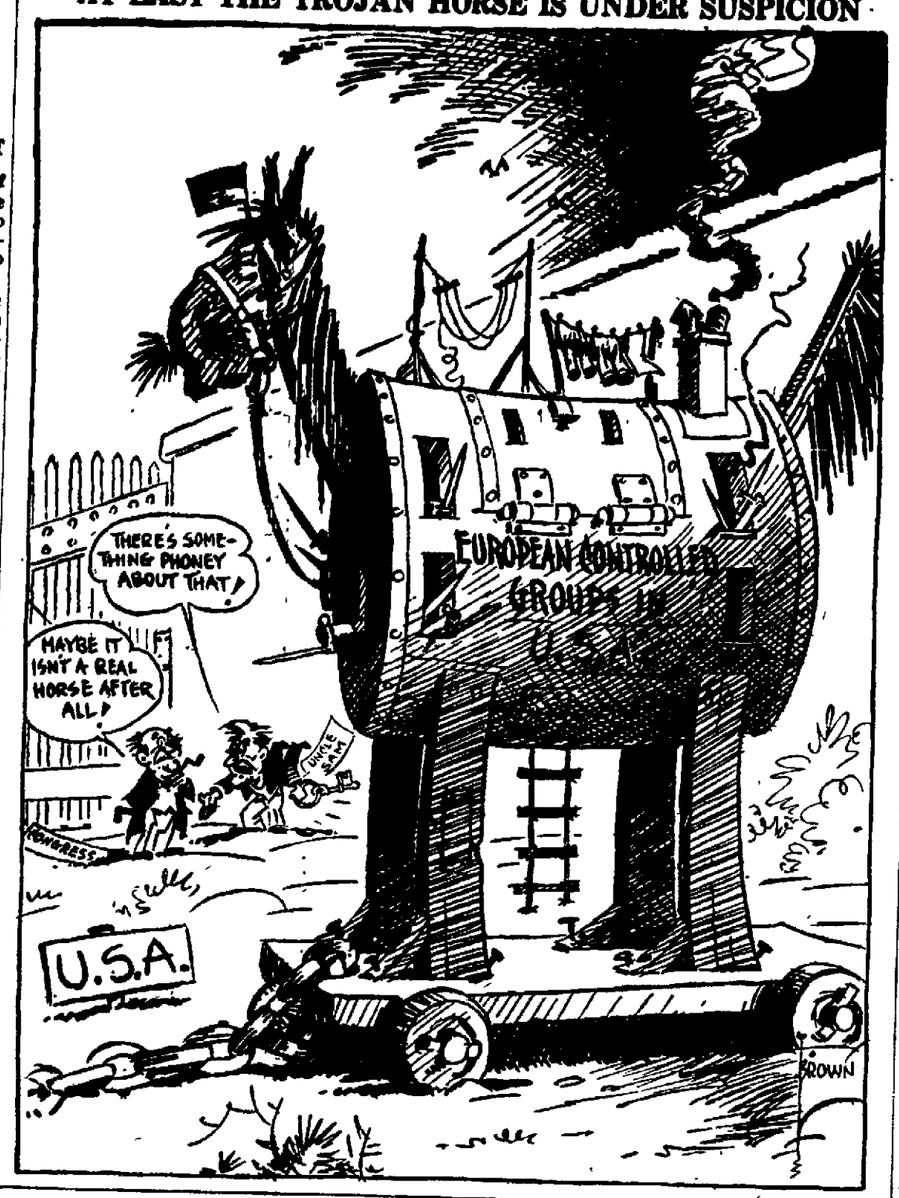
AT LAST THE TROJAN HORSE IS UNDER SUSPICION



Willkie Peeves Third-Termers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WENDELL L. WILLKIE, the Commonwealth and Southern power magnate and Republican presidential possibility, succeeded in getting third-term New Dealers thoroughly sore the other day by expressing a yearning to debate with Franklin D. Roosevelt the question:

Has Roosevelt done as good a job for the United States as Willkie has done for public utilities?

Of course, Willkie's plain implication was that he'd win the argument easily. That made the Rooseveltians hot, for one thing. What made them still hotter was his claim to credit for a 100 per cent loyal utility organization, whereas the president's "bureaucracy, feeding upon political preference and privilege, has developed within itself the inevitable forces of discord and disharmony."

The New Dealers have to admit that there's a bit of disharmony between "pro" and "anti" New Deal Democrats, but they don't like to have it harped upon by Wendell Willkie, who was a Democrat himself until comparatively recently.

Poor Comparison?

And anyway, they say, such an outfit as the United States government can't imaginably be as free from differences of opinion among officials as an autocratically run concern like Willkie's power kingdom; if one of Wendell's subordinates (even a very big one) shows signs of disagreeing with his boss in the slightest particular, Wendell fires him instanter.

Those who remain are loyal, all right—they wouldn't remain otherwise—not unless they at least pretended to be mighty loyal. That's the New Dealers' story. But a president of the United States, they explain, can't be so high-handed; it wouldn't be democratic.

They add that they don't believe Wendell ever was much of a Democrat with a big "D" either, although he called himself one for years and years.

Their theory is that he professed Democratic principles because his power realm is largely in Dixie (Commonwealth and Southern) and probably he considered it good business to align himself with the popular kind of southern politics.

No Hereditary Aristocrat.

It isn't made quite so clear why he flopped to Republicanism lately. Maybe he flopped because he sensed a change in southern political sentiment.

The fact is that Wendell always seemed to me (I've met him frequently in a newspaperman's capacity) to be quite a satisfactory little "d" democrat. Anyhow, he's informal, approachable and an excellent mixer. There's nothing aristocratic about him.

I've met some of his underlings, also. They don't refer to him as a hard-boiled boss. Contrariwise they describe him as a good fellow, but perhaps this is because he scares 'em into it.

The popular impression is that a power magnate is a plutocrat, not only in his own right, but born with a golden spoon in his trap—a guy who doubtless has made a lot of his money, but who had his original stake handed down to him by his ancestors.

Self-Made Man.

Willkie doesn't belong one particle in that category.

He's a native Hoosier, and his family absolutely was all right, but not at all affluent. Wendell worked his own way through Indiana university and on into the legal profession. He got into public utilities through their law departments. Today he's a New Yorker, like Tom Dewey—also a western product (Michigan).

Wendell, in his youth, traveled around the country considerably. He's been a farm laborer. Some of his traveling was done in box cars.

So if Wendell's a magnate, he's earned his magnate-ism.

Likewise, by his capable, though informal oratory, he's converted himself from a very dark Republican horse, into something of a sure-enough candidate.

Health and Diet

Fast Growth of Dental Science.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE profession of dentistry is only one hundred years old. It was in 1840 that a college for the education of dentists was founded in Baltimore. The practice of dentistry then was largely that of tooth pulling or the making of dentures.

One of the earliest American dental memorials was George Washington's teeth, exhibited in Baltimore on the occasion of the centenary celebration and which were made of hippopotamus bone.

I suppose the greatest advance that has been made in dentistry in the hundred years of its existence has been in public education of the necessity for cleaning teeth in order to prevent decay. It is difficult for us to realize that the toothbrush and cheap dentifrices are themselves of fairly modern origin. The first toothbrushes were made of horse hair or pieces of cloth or linen, sometimes of sponge.

Sad Statistics.

The use of the toothbrush is still in its infancy according to statistics, for it is estimated that 70 per cent of the population of North America have never had their teeth examined and about 80 per cent have never brushed their teeth.

The idea of filling teeth and preserving them instead of pulling them out is also an introduction of the last century. The old dentists used to use coins, gold and silver and lead, wherever they could get it, for tooth filling. The introduction of plaster and enamel is credited to Laurie of Edinburgh, about 1854.

Crown and bridge work, while it was attempted in very early times, has been put on a scientific basis only in quite recent times. It was in 1864 that a Swedish dentist suggested the fitting of a gold crown, and J. B. Beers, an American dentist, in 1873, made a gold shell crown which was so obviously practical that it stimulated others to invent adaptations of it.

Dentistry has naturally profited from two great advances in medicine—one, the introduction of anaesthesia for which dentists were considerably responsible, and two, the use of the X-ray.

Local anaesthesia has, for most dentists, taken the place of general anaesthesia for major dental operations. It seems strange that dentists, who have been so largely responsible for the early work in anaesthesia, have never perfected a practical method of preventing pain in minor operations, such as drilling and cavity-filling.

Ouch!

The X-ray, of course, is a great boon to dentists. A great deal has been learned about tooth infection, unerupted teeth, malposition, since its introduction. I feel that we should pass on a warning from Dr. Walter S. Thompson of Los Angeles who cautioned women against wearing heavy make-up when they go to dentists for X-ray. The cosmetics may form a layer of mineral substance on the skin which absorbs enough X-ray energy to cause burns. It takes quite a strong current to make good dental films and the danger of burning is by no means theoretical.

Another great advance in dentistry is the specialty of orthodontia or straightening teeth and creating good occlusion of the mouth, which is of course of benefit to general health

There is still work for dentists to do because it is estimated that there are 830,000,000 cavity-pitted teeth in the United States, or about 6.5 bad teeth per person.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Some of the most important state department conversations in Monroe Doctrine history are now progressing secretly with the Brazilian government.

They are aimed at protecting South America from Nazi invasion, particularly at preventing surprise air attacks against the Panama canal.

The discussions contemplate an air base in northern Brazil, and also probably a naval base. Actually these will not be called American air and naval bases. They will be called "co-operation" between the U. S. army air corps and the Brazilian army, also between the navies of the two countries.

Although not publicly announced, the air corps already is arranging to send a group of army airmen to Brazil to help train Brazilian aviators. In addition, they will also help to improve Brazilian airports, especially in north Brazil, and to make them available to U. S. army planes—when and if.

All this goes back to the president's defense message to congress in which he pointed to the nearness of the African coast to Brazil—within hopping distance for big bombers.

A glance at the map shows how close Brazil is to the Canary Islands, owned by Fascist Spain, and reported to have been used as bases by German warships. Should the Nazis take over French and British possessions in Africa, Brazil would be extremely close to them. As a matter of fact, Germany does not have to take the Allied colonies to be near Brazil; already she has titular right to the Belgian Congo.

Northern Brazil is sparsely populated and extremely wealthy. In it are vast rubber forests, iron ore deposits, cotton fields. It contains just what Germany needs.

Should Hitler shatter the United Kingdom, U. S. strategists believe northern Brazil would be his first objective in the Western Hemisphere. Hence the hurried negotiations between the state department and the Brazilian embassy.

Secretary Woodring.

IF THE president wants to get rid of War Secretary Harry Woodring, it looks as if he would have to blast. The nobby little Kansan is refusing any ordinary sops to vacate.

"Harry," Roosevelt propositioned recently, "how'd you like to be Minister to Canada? That's a very important post and will become more so as things develop."

"No, thank you, Mr. President," was the quiet but firm reply. "The only diplomatic post I would consider is St. James's."

Note:—Woodring is reported to be negotiating for the purchase of a financial interest in a Kansas insurance company.

CIO Showdown.

BEHIND the closed doors of the CIO executive committee convening today, there will be a showdown which may have far-reaching effect on the future of labor.

Not generally known is the fact that the inner CIO command has been racked by a serious factional split for months.

Heart of the conflict is the question of who shall dominate CIO policy; whether the CIO shall be ruled by a left-wing minority of Communists and fellow-travelers in key positions, or by the moderate trade-union majority. Involved in the struggle is the continued rule of John L. Lewis. Also involved are peace with the AFL, and the CIO's stand on the third term.

Backing John L. Lewis are a number of small, left-wing unions. They are adamantly opposed to peace with the AFL and to Roosevelt. They also eye the national defense program with hostile suspicion and denounce the European war as an "imperialistic struggle."

Opposing this radical coterie are the big CIO affiliates that constitute its real numerical strength—United Rubber Workers, United Auto Workers, and Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Led by brainy Sidney Hillman of the Clothing Workers, recently appointed to the National Defense Council, this faction is pro-third term, pro-Ally, anti-Communist, for peace with the AFL; and in recent weeks, for the elimination of Lewis as CIO president.

When Lewis called today's executive committee meeting, he gave no indication of what would be considered. But the inside word reaching the Hillman group is that Lewis wants to put the committee on record in favor of his anti-third term and anti-AFL stand; also to issue a covertly anti-administration blast on the defense and war issues.

If he attempts to jam these through, it is not impossible that an open CIO schism may result.

CIO "Rotten Boroughs."

THE CIO executive committee consists of the heads of each of the 43 CIO unions. This means that a small, chiefly paper organization, such as the recently established United Construction Workers, has one vote; while the United Rubber Workers with tens of thousands of members also has only one vote. Because of this "rotten borough" system, Lewis may be able to swing a majority in the executive committee, whereas he could not begin to muster the same majority at a convention where voting strength is based on union membership.

The right-wing bloc is determined not to allow the executive committee to put the CIO on record politically or industrially. If Lewis and his left-wing cohorts try to force this, there will be a blowup which will make labor history.

Note:—Inside reason for the failure of the powerful International Ladies' Garment Workers, former CIO affiliate, to rejoin the AFL—as was generally expected—was the belief that Lewis will be replaced as CIO head, with a complete change in CIO policy. The ILGW is strongly for peace with the AFL, and bolted the CIO because of Lewis' refusal to continue negotiations.

Political Chaff.

JACK GARNER is telling intimates that he is now convinced the president will run again. The V-P says Roosevelt hasn't said anything to him about it, but his opinion is based on "unmistakable indications" . . . The Republican national committee is making vigorous efforts to line up the Scandinavian vote, important in a dozen states. The John Ericsson Republican League, founded 30 years ago in honor of the inventor of the Monitor, first Union ironclad warship, is being rejuvenated . . . Principal speaker at the recent Ericsson League convention in Chicago was Senator Bob Taft . . . If Floor Leader Sam Rayburn should get the Democratic vice-presidential nomination there will be four candidates for his house post: Lindsay Warren (N. C.), John McCormack (Mass.), Pat Boland (Pa.), and Clifton Woodrum (Va.). The latter will be the choice of the anti-New Dealers and will be vehemently opposed by the administration.

Farming and Teaching

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHY don't you get mad, once in a while, in your column?" a friend asked me the other day. "Don't you have a temper?"

"When, for instance, couldn't you be sure?" I asked him.

"Well—you paid that fine for going through a stop sign, when you were plainly victimized. But you were as meek as Moses. I'd have felt better if you'd ripped out of few little words more suited to the occasion. And don't you and your wife ever get on each other's nerves, or is it just that you have room enough out on the farm to disagree without anybody overhearing you?"

"Quite possibly that's it," I told him. "I'm really quite a fighter. As I recollect my youth, I usually wore a chip on one shoulder. If it got knocked off, I shifted it to the other. Maintaining one's own selfrespect as the youngest of four boys demanded fistic ability, sometimes, I recall. We were poor. (I'm used to being poor.) My brothers and I worked and farmed our way through school and college. I applied for a job as teacher of country school when I was still so young that I wore my oldest brother's high stiff hat to make myself look taller. Rural schools in Pennsylvania were a tough row of stumps, when I began. The pupils ranged from six to twenty-two, in age, and I had 43 in my first schoolroom. I was 18 and weighed 110 pounds. One day I whipped six of the biggest boys and wore out six whips doing it. My own arms were sore next day and my pupils could not sit, but after that we were good friends, and things went fine. They were good boys—but they had to be shown."

"You're more of a school teacher than a farmer?" he suggested.

"No—" I hesitated for the words to set him right—"farming is my avocation, if you like, teaching my vocation. But whatever success I may have had as instructor and disciplinarian has been rooted not so much in academic theories as in fundamentals of living as I have known them upon the land. The earth is basic. Education should mean better living. The best of life, like the best water of a spring, is nearest its source. I love the farm. It is my life. I hope always to live there."

"Do you believe in spare the rod and spoil the child?" he asked. I laughed.

"That's pedagogy—but I know that farm boys, even yet, have respect for a tough hickory sprout, judiciously applied, when they know they deserve it."

45 Killed as Nazi Planes Bomb Paris

One American Dead, Ambassador Bullitt Narrowly Escapes; Fires Follow Bomb Hits, Buildings Razed.

in the interior of Paris, notably on private buildings and on several points in the Paris region."

The police, however, said casualties were apparently small considering the tons of explosives dropped.

From the roof of the American embassy in the Place de la Concorde I saw saw columns of smoke suddenly rising within the city. This continued for the best part of an hour.

During the protracted raid we saw flames where bombs had started great fires.

Windows of buildings along the Seine were smashed by the terrific concussion of falling bombs.

Three apartment houses burst into flames after incendiary bombs struck them.

An Associated Press correspondent who drove across Paris behind one of the numerous ambulances, reached the apartment houses in a slum district on the outskirts as nurses and stretcher bearers were carrying out the dead and the wounded. And these were many.

Vast gaping holes were dug into streets in some sections.

At the time of his narrow escape Ambassador Bullitt was about to have lunch in a building which does not form a part of the embassy.

Anti-aircraft guns, let loose on the Nazi invader, set up the heaviest fire since the war started nine months ago. At times it reached the volume of cannonading.

The shrill blasts of the air raid sirens sent thousands of men, women and children scurrying in fright to air raid shelters.

In one place four persons were wounded, none seriously. They were treated at a hospital which lay in the line of the bombers' flight.

The anti-aircraft guns sending up a hail of shells were suddenly joined by machine-gun batteries on the city's rooftops.

Above the steady volume of the big guns and the rattle of the smaller and speedier machine-guns could be heard the deep thunder of the German bombers and the drone of the French fighting machines which pursued them.

Less than ten minutes elapsed before the time the first shriek of the sirens burst on the air and the first bombs were dropped near the city.

The explosions shook the windows in the offices of the Associated Press in the center of Paris.

Observers atop the American embassy at the Palace de la Concorde said they could see quite plainly a considerable number of planes.

Climbing high to get out of range of the barking anti-aircraft guns, the German planes moved in fearsome parade over the center of the old city—past Notre Dame, the Eiffel tower, the Church of the Madeleine and other historic places known to American tourists.

The first bombs sent up clouds of dirt and smoke, and for an hour Parisians and fugitives from the war zone huddled in their shelters.

Windows were shaken in the center of the city by the terrific force of the explosions, and from the sound of the blasts and the volumes of smoke rising observers concluded the damage was probably considerable.

Shortly after the first alarm was sounded observers said the planes were coming over "in great numbers."

The first alarm was sounded at 1:20 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EST).

French Report Nazis Mass Forces For Paris Drive

By RALPH HEINZEN
(UP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS — French reconnaissance planes reported today that the German army of the north, totalling more than 600,000 men, was executing a gigantic turning movement and it was reported here that the German high command was massing tanks, artillery and infantry for an attack on the Oise-Aisne-Argonne front as its next step in a desperate attempt to bring the war to a quick end.

French air squadrons were sent out to bomb roads and troop concentration points behind and in the path of the German northern army.

Gen. Maxime Weygand, Allied generalissimo, was reported to have made his troop dispositions in readiness to meet an attack on the Oise-Aisne-Argonne front within from 48 to 72 hours.

Possibly as the preliminary to an all-outbombardment, in preparation for mass attack, the Germans increased the tempo of their heavy gun fire between Rethel and Sedan at the eastern part of this front, in the Argonne hills.

Two minor German attacks, of local nature, against French advance outposts in front of the Maginot line east of Moselle were taken for attempts to divert attention from the northern army's turning movement.

Germany opened a furious attack on the 200 transports and 100 warships evacuating the Allied northern army from Dunkerque.

The war office here refused to disclose the number of troops evacuated and said that it would make a factual statement only when the evacuation had been completed.

But a spokesman added that this statement might now be issued within 24 hours.

The Germans were sowing thousands of mines in the channel, in the evacuation path, while their planes attacked transports and their big guns shelled men on the Dunkerque beach. Swift motor-torpedo boats raced into the channel from Belgian ports, where they had been taken overland, to attack the evacuation fleet.

It was asserted officially that an "important" number of these boats had been sunk and that the evacuation proceeded normally.

German combat planes were reported unusually active in the Rethel-Sedan sector, especially trying to keep French reconnaissance planes from observing troop movements or preparations behind the German lines on the Oise-Aisne-Argonne front.

The German massing of forces on the new front was taken to mean that officially, the battle of Flanders had ended at last, and that the next phase was to begin—perhaps timed to coincide with Italy's entrance in the war.

But the Flanders battle was over only officially. Though part of the French rear guard, the lost army, had been overwhelmed, hopelessly trapped, much of it had reached Dunkerque and, with the British, was fighting an historic action.

Embarkations continued steadily under a merciless German fire as the last of the French and British troops who had been trapped by the Belgian king's submission to Adolf Hitler held the Germans behind their flooded defense lines.

Fifteen German divisions, upwards of 225,000 men, were reported attacking a last stand force of about 15,000 Allied troops, their heavy artillery, firing from miles away, blasting the beaches night and day.

Military commentators asserted that Germany had captured but a relatively small part of the so-called French lost army, and that these were wounded men and those who had become separated from their units.

The bulk of the army, it was asserted, had arrived at Dunkerque in orderly manner and had embarked coolly under the German fire.

French airplanes bombed German-held highways between the Abbeville area of the Somme and Dunkerque without a let-up yesterday.

Government Takes Control Of British Civilian Life

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Prepared for every eventuality from Italian participation in the war to a direct invasion of England, the British government took over complete control of this country's civilian life today.

Military and police authorities established a virtual cordon around London. Guards were mounted at every junction and point of entry into the so-called "arterial roads" which link the capital with the provinces.

The guards were ruthless in their examinations of identity cards and driving licenses. The scrutiny was so thorough and comprehensive that ordinary traffic was completely dislocated. In some cases, trunk roads were jammed with waiting cars four miles deep.

Under new precautionary regulations which went into effect today, all aliens are compelled to be in their homes by midnight. Special permits are being issued in certain cases, but this procedure is exceedingly slow, with the result that the curfew will be virtually airtight tonight.

Well-informed circles were entirely convinced that the coming week will bring intensification of the war and possibly some joint strategy by the Rome-Berlin axis.

Some quarters predicted quick renewal of Germany's drive against the heart of France, with Italy throwing in her lot with the reich.

But there also was a widely held opinion that Germany needs a breathing spell before launching a westward assault and that Premier Mussolini is not quite ready to strike.

This second opinion forecast axis diplomatic moves as a prelude to renewed military action.

Meanwhile, the Allied general staff gave every sign of awareness of the situation, as displayed by further reinforcement of the Allied Mediterranean fleet and diversion of considerable other forces to that area.

Reporter Gives Eye-Witness Story of Air Raid on Paris

(EDITOR'S NOTE: William J. Humphreys, lanky native of Salisbury, Maryland, a member of the Associated Press staff in Paris, was off duty when the German air raiders attacked today and got a Parisian's eye view of a modern air bombardment from his apartment. Several paragraphs near the start of his dispatch were eliminated by the censor.)

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS

PARIS—(AP)—The sirens across the river from where I live began wailing at 1:20 p. m. (7:20 a. m. EST) today and the thunder of the first exploding bombs was heard 10 minutes later.

My Polish maid, Anna Malarz, who used to live in Massillon, Ohio, rushed in and shut all the windows.

Then she gathered together a few possessions and hurried to the air raid shelter in the basement.

Then the bombing began in earnest. For more than half an hour the bombardment kept up steadily, bombers circling around (here one word censored) suburbs.

None fell nearer than a block away, however. (Eight words censored).

(Fourteen words censored) four of the wounded, none of whom was hurt seriously, were treated at (one word censored) hospital, directly across the square from where I live.

Among those in the hospital was Mrs. Maurice Dalva, an American, of New York City, who gave birth Sunday morning to a daughter. She was not hurt.

Before I could get dressed and get downstairs to an air raid shelter, the building shook from terrific explosions almost in the front yard.

Windows in our building were shattered but ours withstood the blast.

Edwin Plitt, second secretary of the American embassy, who lives next door, said he saw stones bounce off his car. He watched the bombing from behind closed steel shutters with smoke drifting in through the air holes.

Ambulances and fire engines streamed across the bridge near my house. The bridge was not damaged although bombs fell near both ends.

I could see the material damage done at one factory where it was reported that there were dead and wounded inside. But the blaze kept rescue workers away.

fully, although demanding that social legislation and civil rights be safeguarded.

2. A manufacturers' committee agreed to report today to William S. Knudsen of the national defense commission on how, when and where a $200,000,000 list of machine tools for armament industries could be supplied.

3. Senator Pepper (D-Fla) was understood to have suggested to President Roosevelt that the army and navy be authorized to "trade in" older warplanes to the makers, who then could resell them to the Allies for quick delivery. Critics argued that the United States should not weaken its own air forces at this time.

4. The federal works agency began a survey to determine how much public works labor could be transferred or trained for defense preparations.

5. The senate took up the house-approved naval expansion bill, with every indication that it would be passed as expeditiously as other defense measures. The senate naval committee, meanwhile, studied legislation to expediate building of ships already authorized.

The one proposal on which continuing criticism was heard among lawmakers was Mr. Roosevelt's request for authority to call the national guard to active duty, should he deem it necessary. Senator Vandenberg commented that "when you talk about mobilizing the national guard, you are speaking in terms that are ominous to the country."

On the other hand, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said that it now would be impossible without congressional consent to send any national guard units "to assist a regular division in any one of the possible situations which might arise in this hemisphere."

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Frank Gietzinger, 31, Beloit, O., was on his way back to Canton today to face false-check charges, asserting he was "tired of being a fugitive."

Gietzinger surrendered to Newport police yesterday and admitted giving a worthless $18.20 check to Nick Karkotolis, Canton restaurant owner, May 18.

PUSH INQUIRY

Agencies Seek Cause of Crash of Huge Transport.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Careful inquiries were pushed today into the crash and burning Saturday of a nine-ton transport built for the U. S navy on its first test flight.

The civil aeronautics authority, the navy and Douglas Aircraft company, which built the $125,000 twin-engined ship of new high-wing design, were silent as to the possibility of sabotage pending reports of their experts.

The craft plunged into a flower bed at high speed shortly after its takeoff, carrying four Douglas employes to death. Aboard were Harry E. Gogen, 28, the pilot; William Melville Benson, 25, flight engineer; James Dale Jewart, 23, inspector, and Walter M. Mulvania, 38, crew chief.

bilities but rather by what we have been able to do with these capabilities. There is a democracy of opportunity to amount to something, but there is always an aristocracy of achievement," he said.

Elaborating on his second point, Rev. Braker said, "The world is ours to control, but we must cooperate with others to control it. In an orchestra each musician must play his best, but orchestral success is determined by each member playing his best in cooperation with others. He cannot do as he pleases by playing solos when he is supposed to play ensembles."

"Finally," Rev. Braker added, "We must lose ourselves in a cause that is greater than our own comforts and lives." It is the cause of God that challenges us. The future does not offer any one of us security.

"We do need a foundation. War may destroy all that is upon the earth, but war cannot destroy the sky and the earth itself. The earth will still be here to rebuild. God survives all storms of man's passion and greed."

"Some don't know which way to turn. But thank God if we have something to turn upon, a foundation, even God who does not change. Thank God if we have a direction to take when we do turn. That direction is love, for with love for each other and for God and his son Christ, we can find the right road to take."

Attired in caps and gowns, members of the graduating class were seated in a group in the center of the church, as were members of the school faculty and the board of education.

Assisting in the service were Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the Lutheran Church, and Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, whose son is a member of the senior class.

The choirs of the Lutheran and Baptist church, under the direction of Frederick Wolf, director at the Lutheran church, were combined for the service. Lawrence S. Frank, minister of music at the Baptist church, presided at the organ. He played "Adagio from Suite Latine" for the prelude, and "Grand March" from "Aida" as the processional. For the postlude he played "Fugue in D Major." Mrs. Lawrence Frank sang "The Voice in the Wilderness" as the offertory solo.

AS JUNE gets into full swing, and we look forward to coming nuptial events, several weddings of late May in this area have been announced. A very simple service was read at 7:30 p. m. May 29 for Miss Marilyn Minerva Darling, Trimble road, and George W. Klippel, jr. Dr. Grover E. Swoyer officiated.

A few friends and relatives of the pair witnessed the ceremony which was read before the altar of the First Lutheran church. The single ring service was performed.

For her marriage the former Miss Darling, daughter of S. O. Darling, Central avenue, wore a street length jacket dress of pale blue with navy accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Klippel are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school, and the bridegroom is employed at the Michigan Motor Freight Lines, Inc. The pair have just returned from a short motor trip and they are now at home with Mr. Klippel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Klippel, 318 East First street.

The single ring ceremony was read in the presence of relatives of the couple. The altar was decorated with a large basket of white gladioli and snapdragons.

For her marriage the former Miss Riddle chose a powder blue costume suit with navy accessories. Her flowers were yellow rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley.

Marguerite also is a pledge of Alpha Delta Pi, social sorority on the Athens campus.

Did you know that Jane Bond was graduated from Virginia Intermont junior college at Bristol, Va. recently? Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bond, and sister, Eleanor, went down for the occasion, and then before returning home, the family took a motor trip through the mountains, stopping off at various places of interest.

YOU'LL want to come over soon, Lucy, to see Vangeline Cook who arrived home late Saturday night following the completion of a year's work and graduation at the New York university school of retailing in New York City—she's vacationing at the home of her parents, Atty. and Mrs. Van C. Cook. . . . Roland Miller returned last week from Sarasota, Fla. to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie F. Miller—you no doubt recall that Roland attended the Ringling School of Art in that Florida city this past year. . . . And Virginia Chew went back to Cleveland yesterday, after a visit of several days with her parents, Atty. and Mrs. Charles W. Chew.—She will be graduated from the library school at Western Reserve university next week and then is planning to go to Chicago, Ill., for a visit with college friends.

Out of School, Into Marriage Risky

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

We have the head of a progressive educational institution advancing the idea that "a college diploma one day and a marriage certificate the next" is advisable for Miss America. The choice of a husband, according to this authority, should be equally young, and a girl "should eschew the older man who is well established, when there is likely to be too much difference in age and ideas."

Well, well, who's going to put up the money for all this youthful love in a palace? If a girl marries immediately after graduation and the man she marries is equally youthful, they must have plenty of inherited wealth with which to pay the bills. If they're independent youngsters and not utter parasites, they will probably object to a parental handout. Not the best type of American youngster is agreeable to accepting a parental dole, even if there happens to be enough money in the family to make this possible.

Concerning the marriage-after-graduation plan, there is a grim comment in the statistics which show that more of these marriages go on the rocks than those contracted by young people a couple of years later, when they have learned something of responsibility, self-discipline, the worth of a dollar—or, in other words, when they have absorbed a good dose of common sense. If you'll look up the word "education" in the dictionary, you will find that it means, among other things, "discipline of mind and character."

After graduation, things may be apt to slow up a bit. Surely there must be something else on the calendar to keep her in the limelight. Yes, there's the wedding. The sweet girl graduate is more apt to be in love with love than she is with her very young fiance. To prove the exception to the rule, some of these college-diploma-and-marriage-certificate unions do survive. But they are risky.

If youngsters are so desperately in love that marriage is the only solution, it's better for them both to get jobs and stand on their own feet than to accept the parental handout. To go back a little, it's much more sensible for youngsters to seek an education that will insure job-getting. On the other hand, if they've had the type of education which is a little bit of this and a little bit of that, it's better to settle down to a course in vocational training before they apply for the marriage certificate.

Influence Of Maiden Aunt

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The day has nearly passed when unmarried aunts bring up their sister's children. Nevertheless, there are still aunts like the Aunt in Whittier's First Snow Fall—

"And welcome wheresoe-er went,
A calm and gracious element," who have fired their nieces and nephews with ambition. Such an aunt of mine still lives, and I owe her much.

William Lyon Phelps, in his Autobiography with Letters devotes a chapter to his Aunt Libbie, who lived alone and paid frequent visits to William's boyhood home; "some of the happiest moments" of his life were spent in her house, when his brothers and he went there for week-ends, he writes.

"Her influence on me (and my brothers) was wholly beneficial, for she supplied everything I did not get at home. . . . She was interested in every detail of our lives, and longed to have us happy and natural, and did her best to make us so. She studied the art of conversation as she studied the art of singing, and she seemed to prize good manners and good breeding and good taste above everything."

William Lyon Phelps cites a vivid lesson for all of us in the art of being gracious:

"Among other things I learned from her, I learned some consideration for others. When I was about eight years old, spending a week-end at her house, a middle-aged man called one evening, and after a polite skirmish with my aunt, he devoted his attention to me. At that time I happened to be excited about boats, and the visitor discussed the subject in a way that I found charming. After he left, I spoke of him with enthusiasm. What a man! And how tremendously interested in boats! My aunt informed me that he was a New York lawyer; that he cared nothing whatever about boats—took not the slightest interest in the subject. 'But why then did he talk all the time about boats?' 'Because he is a gentleman. He saw you were interested in boats, and he talked about the things he knew would interest and please you. He made himself agreeable.'"

With more time for leisure and social recreation, many an unmarried aunt has more opportunities to cultivate the social graces than her married sister with several children. However, an occasional aunt will nag at her sister and children about manners.

The widely-read and highly-cultivated aunt of 14-year-old William Lyon Phelps must have done much to inspire him for the career by which he, in turn, has inspired so many hundreds of others in appreciation of great literature. "I was 14 or 15. . . . I had recently read the complete works of William Shakespeare, and from 5 in the morning until 6:30 we discussed the characters and plots with ardour. We did this on every one of her visits for several years. I learned a great deal," he writes.

Often I hear from a youth-inspiring aunt, and I cheerfully answer her. Indeed, I answer personally, as soon as I am able, every one who, desiring a personal reply, writes me in care of this paper and encloses a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WITH a "thank you," thrown over my shoulder at Dicky, I scurried away.

I heard Lillian's voice and that of Philip Veritzen in animated colloquy in the library as I passed the door, and felt reasonably safe in going on to my little study. I did not dare to knock for fear of being overheard, but when, with infinite caution, I pushed aside the door and entered, I found Noel ranging up and down the room as if he were a caged animal, knocking against chairs and tables, patently with no thought that he could easily be overheard.

I closed the door after me noiselessly, then went to him, and clutched his arm with my right hand while the fingers of my left were placed against my lips.

"Are you insane?" I whispered. "Your father is in the next room. You must not let him guess that you are here. He'll be quite furious!"

He halted in his stride, perforce, for I had his arm in a firm grip, and turned hot resentful eyes upon me.

"What does it matter?" he asked, but I noted with relief, that his voice was muted. "I'm going in there in a second or two and tell him what he ought to be told. Can't you see what he's planning on doing?"

I touched his lips with my fingers, and with a still firm grip on his arm drew him toward the door.

"Quiet!" I whispered authoritatively, "until we go to a room where we can talk."

He did not speak again, but followed me docilely out of the room and down the back hall, through the kitchen, where Katie looked at us startled and wide-eyed, but, evidently awed by my intent manner, said nothing, and we went on up the back stairs to a trunk room, the only place in the house where I knew we would be free from interruption. My father's guards were stationed in the attic, and every other room in the house was either occupied, or, as was the case with the one which Harry and Dicky were leaving, was within hearing of the library where Lillian was holding Philip Veritzen in conversation.

I shut the door behind us, sat down on one trunk, and motioned Noel to another.

"Now, what is troubling you?" I asked, trying to make my voice sound as though he were being unduly concerned. "Didn't you see Mary's glorious triumph, and hear your father's surprise?"

"Mary was wonderful, wasn't she?" he said his face and voice suddenly enthusiastic. Then they were flat again.

"My father saved his face just in time before you were going to spring that surprise rendition on him," he said. "But you know as well as I do that his reason for planning to deprive Mary of the role was because he thought, crazily enough, that if he could crush her that way, she'd take her resentment out on me, and then he'd have parted us, just as he's planned to do ever since we were married."

"'Crazily enough,'" I repeated disdainfully. "You've used the right words, Noel. Your father is too shrewd to have an idea like that. He knows human nature well enough to be sure that, given your temperament and Mary's, an injustice to her like that would draw you closer together instead of separating you. No, we must look in some other direction for his motive in training her in that stilted, lifeless rendition."

"I'm not thinking about that, now," Noel said sullenly. "It's this new thing he's planning."

"What new thing?" I asked, injecting a purposeful, patient note into my voice.

"Did you see how that leading man was looking at Mary?" Noel exploded, "and did you see my father watching him and fairly gloating over it?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SIGNAL THE RIGHT SUIT

Whenever it is obvious that your partner is going to shift from the suit in which he wins a trick, to one of the other side suits, it is your job to let him know which you prefer. This is done by experienced campaigners by means of a signal with the card you play to his trick. If it is clearly your lowest card in that suit, you indicate a desire for a lead of the lower-ranking side suit on the next trick. If it is definitely a higher-than-your-lowest card, you are positively asking him to shift to the higher-ranking of the other two suits.

♠ A 10 9 6
♦ K J 6 3
♣ K J 6 3

If your partner leads the A of your heart suit against South's 4-Spades, and the above hand is laid down as dummy, the correct card for you to play on that trick is clearly delineated if you hold any of the following hands:

1. ♠ 5 4 ♥ K Q 8 4 2 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ 7 5 2
2. ♠ 5 4 ♥ K Q 8 4 2 ♦ 7 5 2 ♣ A Q 7
3. ♠ 5 4 3 ♥ K Q 8 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ 7 5 4 2
4. ♠ 5 4 3 ♥ K Q 8 4 3 2 ♦ 7 5 4 2 ♣ None

With any of these you stand a very good chance of beating the contract if your partner makes the correct shift, and apparently hardly any chance if he makes the wrong one. Since the dummy shows exactly the same holding in both diamonds and clubs, your partner has nothing to guide him except the card you play.

You urgently wish a diamond lead in the case of hands No. 1 and No. 3, and command its lead by playing the heart 8 on the first trick. With Nos. 2 and 4, you just as urgently desire a lead of clubs, which you indicate with a play of your heart 2, the lowest you can give him.

The low signal is not quite as clear-cut as that of the high card asking for a diamond lead, for the simple reason that there is a slight amount of ambiguity attached to it. Your partner might think you were merely telling him not to repeat the suit and therefore preferred a lead of trumps to cut down the ruffing possibilities for the declarer. However, if your hand happened to be such that you preferred a trump lead, your best play would be the 4, neither emphatically high nor low.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, June 4.

Unusual and probably perplexing and deepseated problems may come to the surface on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects. While there may be surprising and sudden developments, with some sort of devastating or disruptive movement in attacking new ventures of moment, yet such effort attaches itself to large corporations, political or fraternal bodies, or other hidden sources of subtle influence if to be successfully managed. Writings or documents require due consideration, as peculiar quirks are seen. In private relations a similar unexpected and baffling denouement may be looked for.

Those whose birthday it is, may anticipate a year of surprises and quite unforeseen adventures, especially in new realism or circumstances. In disturbance and doubt it would be well to confer with political, fraternal or other behind the scenes influences for cooperation and success. Be shrewd and wary with writings or documents, which hold peculiar pitfalls or distortions. In romantic or emotional affiliations there should be also pleasant surprises. A child born on this day may be shrewd and profound, with much subtlety and craft, despite its good intentions.

VARIEGATED PLANT FOR SHADE

There is a very useful plant which is so accommodating it will grow in soil which is too poor for most other plants. Furthermore, this plant will grow in full shade. The scientific name of this very cooperative plant is Aegopodium, or Bishop's-weed. It is also commonly called Goutweed because years ago in England the leaves of the plant were boiled and then used as a poultice in the treatment of gout. The plant should be better known and more frequently used for it is splendid for foliage purposes and the variegated markings of its leaves makes it attractive in shady spots.

The leaves of Bishop's-weed are margined with white, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The plants are fast-growing, forming mats of foliage which are especially useful for edging purposes or as a low ground cover. It grows about 12 inches high.

Bishop's-weed blooms in June, having small white flowers. The plants can easily be increased by dividing the roots in either spring or fall.

Beauty Styles Go In for Changes

By MME. QUI VIVE

Every year girls are different, yet they are always the same. They change only in appearance. There are the same desires and yearnings. They want to be pretty. Or they wish to be handsome in the grand manner and carry the exotic air. Beautifying has been going on at a great pace from the time when Eve decked herself up in an al fresco apron, which was certainly a new idea at that time.

You don't have to be ancient to recall changes in makeup styles. Twenty years ago the girl who used rouge was called a painted lady. Suddenly synthetic blushes became respectable. The lipstick started on its wild career. Eyebrow tweezing became a daily occupation.

There was the suntan mania, when brown powder was applied, and proved such a mess in the beauty kit that it survived for only a short season. Trouble was, there was no stopping place. Neck and face got a color divorce.

What have we now? Powders of every conceivable flesh tone, powders blended to order. Rouge losing out among the girls who have any natural coloring at all. The lipstick still an institution, but being toned down. No glaring Chinese reds for women who are among fashion's elect. There's a tendency to soft pedal on glamorous effects.

Every effort is being made to produce a duplicate of a healthy young complexion, which means that the eyebrow crayon has been put on the shelf, that contrast is created by touching the lashes lightly with mascara.

Mt. Ararat in Turkey, on which the Bible says Noah's ark landed, is higher than any U. S. peak—nearly 17,000 feet.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION++

CHAPTER XXVI

Though she understood, Brooke felt excluded and desperately lonely. Before she left them, she told Jim that Barney had promised to help her. Jim said he would see her again before the wedding. Standing a few moments at the entrance of the hotel, Brooke watched them walk down the crowded street together—a lean young man in an old gray hat, and a small slim girl who could have been beautiful—if she cared. Small people content to be small and happy, quietly but terribly happy.

Three days passed before Barney's voice boomed over the telephone.

"Sorry to have been so long about it," he said. "But I think I've got something lined up for you. Go to see Wilson Stone this afternoon. He's an architect who lost his secretary because she was bored stiff. He thinks he wants another one. Lord knows why." He gave her Wilson Stone's address, asked her how she was and rang off abruptly.

At 2 o'clock Brooke stood in the corridor of an office building looking at the letters on a door which spelled, "Wilson T. Stone . . . Architect." She knocked once and opened the door, stepping into a newly furnished office. Then the door to a private office opened and a tall and handsome young man came forward.

"Miss Carter? I was expecting you. Come in," he said most cordially and led the way to his office.

Fifteen minutes later Brooke emerged into the June sunlight with a job and the apologies of Wilson Stone who had said that although he actually needed no secretary, since he was just beginning and had no business, he supposed he should have one.

Brooke called Barney and thanked him.

Barney said, laughing, "Don't thank me for a job like that but it was the best I could do."

* * *

Within a few days it was evident that the major number of Wilson Stone's telephone calls came from Mrs. Stone, who had a young and breathless voice. They lived in Connecticut, he told Brooke, and their first child was cutting his first teeth. Brooke found him a charming and rather bewildered young man and felt a little sorry for him. She had almost nothing to do.

On Monday evening Brooke had dined with Jim and Jean again. They were leaving tomorrow for Ohio. When Jean said, rising, "Oh, there's some one I forgot to call, darling. Excuse me, will you?" Brooke knew that it was a courteous gesture to permit her a few minutes alone with Jim.

He smiled, drawling, "Well, you're all set, Brooke. I'm glad. . ."

"I've been a nuisance, I'm afraid. And this sinecure of a job I've been telling you about makes me feel more strongly than ever that you and Jean are right. Wilson Stone isn't working for anything except appearance. Obviously there's a great deal of money behind him. I think he'd like to make an honest living for his wife and child, really work, and go home at night feeling that he was supporting them. Instead he reads magazines, stares out the window and takes three hours for lunch."

"I'll write you, of course," Jim said. "I'll want to know how you are getting along. Somehow I feel you are going to get along very well." He looked straight at her. "When you realize that Rod is nothing but a stuffed shirt, that he's dull and egotistical, you'll be free. It took me a long time to realize that. I used to admire him. I don't any more . . ."

They said good-bye at the door of her hotel and she saw them walk away again, saw Jean slip her arm through Jim's before they were lost in the enveloping crowd.

She bought a wedding present for them the next day, twelve crystal goblets that would grace the table of "a cottage with roses and mortgages and kiddie cars over which you stumbled on the porch." When she returned to the office, she heard voices in Wilson Stone's office, his and the voice of a woman. They were talking and laughing happily. When they came out and Brooke saw a slim red-haired girl in green, she knew before she was introduced that the girl was his wife.

Late that same afternoon the clear deep tones of a voice vaguely familiar asked for her.

Then, "Brooke? This is Julian Carlton. You're having dinner with me tonight."

Not asking her. But telling her again. . . . Irritation pricked at her temples. . . .

He chuckled, "At seven. Your hotel. I know where you're staying."

She did not answer but she knew that she would go.

Julian was curious about her, Brooke thought, curled up in one chair in the little room, waiting for the telephone to ring. Her fore-finger, crimson-tipped, played with the folds of her graceful blue frock as she thought of him, trying to classify him and feeling a wave of resentment when she failed. He made her feel as if she were a germ under a microscope, she thought, and she sensed his silent laughter.

Who was he? And other than being disturbingly attractive, what was he? She thought, "But when I'm alone like this, I always go back to Rod and Tony. I understand them. More than that, her feelings for them were clearly defined, her stubborn love for Rod, her tender devotion for Irene's son. She sat up suddenly, thinking that by now Jim and Jean were on their way to Ohio to be married.

The ringing of the telephone startled her out of her thoughts.

Julian said, "I'm downstairs, Brooke, and only ten minutes late."

She wanted to say, being unsure of herself with him, "Then I'll keep you waiting ten minutes." But she said that she would be down at once.

He was not looking toward the elevator when she stepped out, and she had a moment to observe him, the strong, sculptured face, sunburned again, the well-proportioned figure in brown tweeds. She had the distinct and uncomfortable feeling that she would like to slip by him unnoticed and go out to dinner alone. She asked herself frankly, "Why?" And couldn't answer. . . .

When he saw her and came toward her, there was nothing forbidding in his swift smile. Having lived for so long with a dark melancholy man, her father, and having for so long looked lovingly at Rod's dark head, she experienced a small but not unpleasant shock when Julian casually removed his brown hat and she realized again how handsome he was.

"We meet again, Brooke." Then, standing over her, his alert, inquisitive blue eyes wholly absorbed in her, he said, "I was eavesdropping on an argument between a girl with red heels and a desk clerk."

"Who won?"

"The red heels made her taller than he is, and I believe she won."

They walked to his car several blocks away, Julian saying indifferently, not looking at her, that Barney had told him she was back and that they would probably find the roof of a certain hotel a cool place to dine.

Theirs was an odd friendship, his and Barney's, she thought. The fat, bolsterous little man and the polished Julian. Odd, too, that his speech was so casual when his body and eyes were so vital.

"You're with Wilson Stone, I hear," he said when they were in the car. "Nice chap. You're not overworked, are you?"

"I haven't enough to do. It's worse for him. I don't think it can last."

"He doesn't have to do anything," Julian said. "Denny, his wife, is immensely rich, and they are very happy. He'll get business eventually. In the meantime," he glanced sidewise and smiled, "you can catch upon your reading." A few moments later he said, chuckling, "I was arrested in your Chatham for speeding a few weeks ago. I was wondering if I told the traffic officer that I was a very good friend of Brooke Carter. . . ."

"Our Mr. Ben is adamant," Brooke said. "I was arrested once myself. It makes him feel important."

"Then it wouldn't have helped. But we could have talked about you. We could have blocked traffic on Main street for an hour while he told me that he remembered you as a black-haired little tyke who disobeyed traffic rules and flirted herself out of a reproach."

"But you didn't." She was not certain that he was telling the truth. . . ."

PERSONAL LOANS

HOW YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, friendly service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less, your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

One rate to everyone

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair Treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300 and 1½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.
